Search resumes

Weather conditions improved today and the search for an airplane missing since Friday night resumed. The search began Saturday when the four occupants of the plane did not reach their destination in Texas. They were last heard from Friday near Marion, Ill. Dave Lambert of St. Louis, left, talks to one of several planes and ground groups scanning areas in Southeast Missouri and Northeast Arkansas where thymissing plane may be downed. Melvyn Shiehtman of St. Louis, center, checks maps with Hugh McCollum, who is in charge of the search operation. Many reports from between Cape Girardeau and Jonesboro, Ark., have raised hopes today of finding the plane.

Orange soil found

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP)— Two jubilant American adventurers prepared today for a farewell lunar exploration. But already aboard their lander Challenger was a new discovery — samples of intriguing orange soil possibly dating to the last fiery gasps of a dying moon.

Astronauts Eugene A. Cernan and Harrison H. Schmitt, in their last geology field trip in the moon valley of Taurus- Littrow today, take an eight- mile drive along the base of a high mountain and at the foot of wrinkled hills, using an electric car with a patched fender.

The astronauts, saying they "like to cover new ground," traveled a mile farther than planned on Tuesday night, gathering many bags of lunar samples, including scoops of the orange dust never before found on the moon.

The orange material was found during exploration of an ancient avalanche, 4.4 miles from the landing camp in Taurus - Littrow valley. By coincidence, it was found by Cernan, not Schmitt, a geologist and America's first professional scientist in space.

"Hey," exclaimed Cernan as he stumbled into the soil at the rim of a crater called Shorty. "Wait a minute . . . there is orange soil."

"It's all over," Cernan went on excitedly. "Orange. I've stirred it up with my feet.

On earth, scientists were also excited by the discovery, though cautious in their evaluation. They said the orange soil may have originated from "the last gaseous gasp of volcanism" on the moon.

Dr. Robin Brett, chief of the geochemistry branch at the Manned Spacecraft Center, said the material possibly could be rust — which has been found in other lunar samples in minute quantities — or some chemical combination which assumes a reddish color.

While Cernan and Schmitt motored on the moon, their crewmate, Ronald E. Evans, labored in the command ship America orbiting overhead. Evans is operating an array of science instruments which are photographing and probing large slices of the moon.

If the soil is a product of the volcanism that Brett spoke of, it may represent material from as recent as 100 million years ago, a time that's only yesterday in the evolution of the moon.

Cernan, the 38- year old mission commander, and Schmitt, 37, photographed the orange material in color from several angles and then took big scoop samples. Cernan also drove two core tubes into the material to get deeper samples.

But, pressed by time, the astronauts were not able to stay longer and find what Schmitt said could have been evidence of volcanic action from the moon's more recent geologic past.

The travelers of Taurus-Littrow started their day working as space- age auto mechanics.

The right rear fender of their $2 million electric car had been torn off by accident Monday and they wanted to repair it.

Following instructions from Mission control and using a design suggested by Apollo 16 commander John Young, Schmitt and Cernan clamped a taped- together sheet of plastic- like paper in the place of the broken fender. They were delighted with the makeshift repair job.

"That fender is really a classic," said Schmitt.

"One might say It's a Younger fender," punned Cernan, referring to Young. He promised to photograph the fender repair and give a copy to Young as a present.

Gone from the early stages of the second excursion was much of the unbridled joy which marked the first. The astronauts carried out the geology field trip with the careful determination of men with important work.

They moved from crater to crater, gathering rock samples, taking scores of photographs and giving careful descriptions of fields they were visiting.

The drove their car from the landing site across a gray plain they called a "black mantle" and onto the debris of an ancient landslide which fell from a nearby 6,000-foot mountain called the south Massif.

Thieves hit auto company

Thieves entered Jarvis Motor Co. on North Main Street between 5 p.m. Monday and 7:30 a.m. Tuesday, according to police.

The thieves apparently entered the building through a south door. Police said three coin machines were broken open and an undetermined amount of money was taken.

Also missing were half a book of inspection checklists and half a book of inspection stickers, a tape player valued at $50, a timing light, two dwell meters valued at $220 and a test light valued at $10.

The thieves also broke into a customer's car, taking his Tennessee license plates, damaging the trunk and stealing a two- way radio.

Police said they believe the break-in was committed by at least two people. The thieves are believed to have drunk from two soft drink bottles found in the building.

School bids set

Final design work on the new eighth and ninth grade school has not been completed, according to Bob Stearnes of the architectural firm of Buchmueller, Whitworth and Foust, Inc.

Stearnes told the board of education Tuesday that working drawings have not been completed.. The bulk of the work remaining to be done is for mechanical and electrical engineering calculations and plans from the architectural drawings.

Bids for the new school will be called for in February and are to be let March 1. Construction is scheduled to begin as soon as possible after that. The board's goal is still to have the school open in January of 1974 as planned.

Sikeston voters recently passed a $1 million bond issue to build the school. The other $150,000 will be spent on furniture and fees.

The school is designed to remove eighth grade students from the junior high school and ninth grade students from the senior high school, thus relieving overcrowding at both schools.

Stearnes told the board that electric heating was probably the best for the school. He pointed out the school would have to be on an interruptible rate if it used gas. That means every time the gas pressure dropped the heating system would have to be shut off. A backup liquid natural gas system would have to be installed in order to keep the school open during the winter. The costs of such a system are high, he said.

Electric installation is cheaper, and with gas prices expected to rise in the future, operating costs will not be much different, he said.

Robert G. Miller, director of elementary education, told the board some boundary shifts may be made next year to relieve overcrowding at Lee Hunter Elementary School.

He said children in a new housing area below the ridge west of Clayton Addition may be sent to Southwest School and children in Salcedo may be sent to Morehouse. The move would involve about 50 children.

The board also discussed the possibility of changing the insurance coverage for students. A student athlete was injured during a basketball game, and the school's insurance company refused to pay the expenses because they said it was a reinjury of a football injury.

Board members said they thought it necessary to have adequate insurance to cover such circumstances.

Reid gets 5 years

NEW MADRID— Lonnie Reid, 24, of rural Catron was sentenced to five years in the penitentiary Monday in Circuit Court after pleading guilty to felonious stealing before Judge William L. Ragland.

Reid was sentenced for the theft of 250 bushels of soybeans valued at $900 which were stolen Oct. 29 from the John Moser farm.

Felonious stealing charges were dismissed against Reid in connection with theft on Oct. 11 of 132 bushels of soybeans owned by Dallas Berry of Gideon and five bales of cotton stolen Nov. 1 from Kenneth Carlisle of Risco.

Divorces were granted to Herman Lee Eiceman of Portageville from Eileen Eiceman, and Freddie Gribble of rural New Madrid from Diane Gribble. Emma Lingle Brown of Sikeston was divorced from Garnest Brown, and she was restored to her former name of Patterson.

Alice Elizabeth Maxwell of New Madrid was divorced from William H. Maxwell. She was restored to her maiden name of Hall.

Agrico Chemical Co. Inc. was granted default judgment of $1,359,58 plus costs against Bruce Fowler and T.D. Fowler of Matthews route one.

An interlocutory judgment for $9,605.32 was awarded Mapco Inc. against John L. Girvin Jr. in a suit for collection of note filed against James B. Killion, John L. Girvin Jr. and James Girvin, all of Portageville.

The judgment against Girvin is not final, pending disposition of the suit against the other defendants.

A change of venue to Stoddard County was granted in a damage suit against Teddy Lathum of Matthews filed by Anita Gaines for damages resulting from the death of her son Richard Lynn Gaines involved in an accident with Lathum Sept. 12, 1971.

An order by the Supreme Court of Missouri has been filed with Circuit Clerk Van H. Sharp affirming the action of Circuit Court Judge William L. Ragland overruling a motion to vacate judgment and sentence of Freddie Lee Grant. Grant is serving a 99 year sentence imposed June 13, 1962 on forcible rape charge.

Arvin plans to be reviewed at Dexter

DEXTER — Percy Clippard, president of the Chamber of Commerce, will bring members up to date on steps being taken to secure the Arvin Industries plant for Dexter at a meeting rescheduled from Monday to Thursday at noon at the Hickory Log Restaurant.

Clippard will also inform Chamber members of the remaining responsibilities of the city for completion of the transaction.

Officers will be elected at the meeting.

Items recovered

Police today announced they have recovered more items stolen Oct. 29 from the Carl Hazel home at 1002 Allen Blvd.

Police recovered a .22-caliber rifle from a house south of Sikeston. The gun had been purchased by an unsuspecting buyer. Recovered from a house on Lake Street were a watch, men's and women's jewelry and keys taken in the same burglary. Police would not say how the items found their way to the house, or who lives there.

Police earlier had recovered three other guns taken in the break-in.

Winford Beaird, 109 Stoddard St., has admitted to police that he committed the burglary and eight others. He has been slowly telling police where they can find the stolen items.

Beaird was arrestedlast week after allegedly burglarizing Liberty Supermarket on North Rainey Street of an estimated $1,000, nearly $900 of which has been recovered.

Kissinger to return home today

WASHINGTON (AP) — Henry A. Kissinger will fly back to Washington late today and, the White House said, will jointly decide with Hanoi's Le Duc Tho any schedule for future Paris peace talks.

Press secretary Ronald Ziegler said Kissinger, presidential assistant for national security affairs, will confer with President Nixon Thursday morning, and, while in Washington, will be in communication with Tho.

Ziegler would not say flatly that further Paris talks are contemplated but his language suggested they are likely.

Ziegler said Kissinger would leave the French capital at 9 p.m. Paris time and arrive at nearby Andrews Air Force Base, Md., about midnight EST Wednesday.

Charleston sets rates

CHARLESTON — A ordinance establishing water rates was adopted Tuesday night by the city council. The prime rate will be $6.25 a month for water and sewer.

Also adopted was an ordinance repealing the $1.25 'sewer service charge. This amount will be added to the water bill.

The council adopted an ordinance establishing water rates for meters at $2.50 for 2,000 gallons or less. The next 8,000 gallons will cost 50 cents per thousand gallons. Rate for 90,000 gallons will be 30 cents per thousand; 100,000 gallons, 20 cents per thousand; and over 200,000 gallons, 10 cents per 1,000 gallons.

A resolution approved at the November council meeting, calling for the installation of water meters and all new construction, was adopted as an ordinance.

A resolution to file application with the Department of Housting and Urban Renewal for re-certification of the city's workable program was approved. Also approved was a resolution for the city to file application for a grant to the Department of Housing and Urban Development for water and sewer improvement.

The council authorized City Manager Richard Martin to sign an engineering contract for sewer improvement with R. W. Booker and Associates Engineering Firm of St. Louis.

Martin was also authorized to seek bids on 1,500 remote reader water meters, with the stipulation that 500 meters would be delivered per year over a three- year period.

Payment of $75 per month for rent was made on the Delta Area Economic Opportunity Council (DAEOC) building. The Chamber of Commerce will pay the additional $25 per month.

Parking meters will be covered for free parking from Dec. 15 through Dec. 29.

The council discussed, but made no decision, on spending the $37,783 revenue sharing check received by the city Monday.

Restoration of the Missouri Pacific Depot, which was added to the National Register of Historic Places, was discussed. Placement on the register makes it eligible for federal grants for restoration. Plans are being formulated for the city to apply to the Department of Housing and Urban Renewal Legacy of Parks program for a grant.

The council approved a resolution for the observance of Key 73 noon prayer call from December 25 to Jan. 6.

Natural gas cut back for fourth time

BLYTHEVILLE, Ark. — For the fourth time this year, Texas Eastern Transmission Pipeline Company has increased its curtailment of natural gas below contract entitlements to Associated Natural Gas Co.

The curtailment, which is effective today, is approximately twice as great as had been anticipated by the companies and reduces even further the amount of gas available to interruptible customers of Associated Gas.

The latest curtailment is for 5,900,000 cubic feet per day and compares to the 5,100,000 cubic feet per day cut which went into effect only Nov. 23.

Home near Dexter is burglarized

DEXTER — The Jewel Grady home on Route One was burglarized Tuesday between 2:30 and 4:30 p.m.

Taken in the burglary were a color television set, a portable black and white television set, a tape player-radio combination, a hair dryer, a sewing machine and a typewriter.

Entry was gained by kicking open the front door.

Stoddard County sheriff's department and the highway patrol investigated.

New flu virus may be on way

Sikeston appears, so far, to have escaped "the flu bug" scourge so prevalent every winter, but there may be a new round of influenza on the way.

Dr. Herbert R. Domke, director of the Missouri Division of Mental Health, has warned that a new strain of the A-2 flu virus, called the "England strain," is expected to appear in Missouri this winter and may cause outbreaks of the disease.

One guide to whether the flu bug, or any other type of bug, is going around is to check absenteeism in the school system.

Most of the schools in Sikeston report absenteeism slightly above normal, although because of the poor weather this week it cannot be attributed, for certain, to the flu bug.

Missouri Delta Community Hospital administrator Harold Jones said there has been no increase in admissions.

Several parents have mentioned that their children "have the flu". But several of the Sikeston doctors said that the flu has not really hit town yet, although there are some viruses around which often behave like influenza.

The newest virus mentioned in the warning from the Missouri Division of Health apparently is a different strain that has caused outbreaks of illness in England, Southeast Asia, Australia and India. A few cases have been reported in Hawaii, and the virus was isolated from several persons in Colorado.

Dr. Domke of the Division of Health, said, however, that "it is reasonable to expect additional outbreaks to occur, even in Missouri."

"How widespread or how serious the anticipated outbreaks may be cannot be determined," he said, "partly because many of the people in Missouri already have some immunity from prior exposure to related influenza viruses and from flu shots.

Dr. Denny Donnel Jr., director of communicable disease control in Missouri, said no specific vaccine is available for immunization against the so- called England strain and new vaccines aren't likely to be developed until next fall. Vaccines currently being used should offer some protection against the new strain, he said.

The council discussed, but made no decision, on spending the $37,783 revenue sharing check received by the city Monday.

Restoration of the Missouri Pacific Depot, which was added to the National Register of Historic Places, was discussed. Placement on the register makes it eligible for federal grants for restoration. Plans are being formulated for the city to apply to the Department of Housing and Urban Renewal Legacy of Parks program for a grant.

The council approved a resolution for the observance of Key 73 noon prayer call from December 25 to Jan. 6.

Natural gas cut back for fourth time

BLYTHEVILLE, Ark. — For the fourth time this year, Texas Eastern Transmission Pipeline Company has increased its curtailment of natural gas below contract entitlements to Associated Natural Gas Co.

The curtailment, which is effective today, is approximately twice as great as had been anticipated by the companies and reduces even further the amount of gas available to interruptible customers of Associated Gas.

The latest curtailment is for 5,900,000 cubic feet per day and compares to the 5,100,000 cubic feet per day cut which went into effect only Nov. 23.

New flu virus may be on way

Sikeston appears, so far, to have escaped "the flu bug" scourge so prevalent every winter, but there may be a new round of influenza on the way.

Dr. Herbert R. Domke, director of the Missouri Division of Mental Health, has warned that a new strain of the A-2 flu virus, called the "England strain," is expected to appear in Missouri this winter and may cause outbreaks of the disease.

One guide to whether the flu bug, or any other type of bug, is going around is to check absenteeism in the school system.

Most of the schools in Sikeston report absenteeism slightly above normal, although because of the poor weather this week it cannot be attributed, for certain, to the flu bug.

Missouri Delta Community Hospital administrator Harold Jones said there has been no increase in admissions.

Several parents have mentioned that their children "have the flu". But several of the Sikeston doctors said that the flu has not really hit town yet, although there are some viruses around which often behave like influenza.

The newest virus mentioned in the warning from the Missouri Division of Health apparently is a different strain that has caused outbreaks of illness in England, Southeast Asia, Australia and India. A few cases have been reported in Hawaii, and the virus was isolated from several persons in Colorado.

Dr. Domke of the Division of Health, said, however, that "it is reasonable to expect additional outbreaks to occur, even in Missouri."

"How widespread or how serious the anticipated outbreaks may be cannot be determined," he said, "partly because many of the people in Missouri already have some immunity from prior exposure to related influenza viruses and from flu shots.

Dr. Denny Donnel Jr., director of communicable disease control in Missouri, said no specific vaccine is available for immunization against the so- called England strain and new vaccines aren't likely to be developed until next fall. Vaccines currently being used should offer some protection against the new strain, he said.

THE SHOPLIFTING GAMBLE

Is it worth $105 to steal a $2 item? That's what it costs a shoplifter if caught and arrested here.

But there is more of a gamble than the loss of $105. Shoplifting is gambling with one's future, points out the Denison (Iowa) Review in a warning against such thefts as follows:

Want to be a beauty operator in a few years? Or maybe a school teacher, or real estate salesman, or barber? If you are thinking about these occupations or any that require a special license, don't shoplift Because a person with a shoplifting record will have trouble getting a job that requires a license or the public trust.

A person with a record has trouble getting loans to buy things like a car, house, or other major purchase. College scholarships may be denied.

If someone is convicted of shoplifting goods worth $20 or more, the law says it is a felony. And a convicted felon can never be a police officer, stock broker, lawyer, security guard, fireman, private investigator, or civil servant such as a postal employe. He or she can never be hired by a state, local or federal government. He or she can never hold an elective office.

"Convicted felon." It doesn't sound very nice. But that is what a person who shoplifts may be known as for the rest of his or her life. Are a few record albums or tapes, or a sweater and skirt really worth the risk of a lifelong criminal record?

THOUGHT CONTROL IN AMERICA

To most people, brainwashing -- the term first made known to the world by veteran newspaper reporter Edward Hunter -- is understood to mean thought control behind the Bamboo Curtain. Americans need to be warned that the Red Chinese "control of thought" has now been extended to the United States. If that sounds weird -- which it is -- hear this.

One of the agreements made between the Nixon administration and the Chinese Communists, among many, was that we will now be privileged to obtain news photographs of events taking place in Red China. This, we are told, is so that we in the free world can have a "better understanding" of things in the Communist world.

There is only one small catch. No one -- not one newspaper or news service from the United States -- will be permitted to take the photographs. All photos from Red China will be furnished by HSINHUA, the official Communist government controlled propaganda agency. Let us ponder what this will mean.

American newspapers are free to record and print any and all happenings in their lens; crimes, accidents deaths, disastors, poverty, slums -- anything at all. Thus, we are allowed to see everything that is "wrong" in America.

But American newspapers will be controlled by the Communists to the extent that we will not be allowed to see photographs of anything wrong in the Red Utopia. Hsinhua will never release a news photo of a crime, or a train wreck, or an airplane accident, or a drunk, or even a photograph of anyone who is against Communism. The only pictures you will be allowed to see in American newspapers will be those photos calculated to cause you to have "good thoughts" about communism.

Every newspaper reader should be warned that what we will be allowed to see will not tell the truth about communist dictatorship in China. Don't be brainwashed!

If you don't exercise regularly, at least take a 40- or 45- minute walk every other day. Those who follow this advice usually find an increase in their working capacity and decreases in their heart rate, blood pressure and percentage of total body fat. Walking is an exercise that practically everyone can follow without fear of injury or developing excessive fatigue. And if time is your problem, just 10 minutes of jogging each day will produce "unexpected and unprecedented" improvement in your physical condition, suggest studies conducted by a California medical clinic.

U. N. IS NO PEACE PATH THESE DAYS

It becomes increasingly difficult to subscribe to the proposition, once voiced with the solemnity of a politician envoking the deity at a 4th of July rally, that "the United Nations is the world's only hope for peace."

Perhaps out of native idealism, mixed with guilt about this country's failure to support the old League of Nations, Americans have been more susceptible than most to this cliche. Certainly no people has given the U. N. more support, spiritually as well as financially.

Recent events, however, would seem to convince even the most naive that the United Nations is not only not the world's only hope but it not even a good hope -- not in the world as it is, as it always has been and as it promises to be for the indefinite future.

Not the least of these events were President Nixon's trips to Peking and to Moscow and the understandings and agreements reached there. These have probably done more for the cause of world peace than anything that has occurred in or out of the United Nations since its founding in 1945.

But in the U. N. itself, in the current session, we have seen Taiwan not only stripped of its representation as the official government of China -- which is one thing -- but stripped even of recognition as an entity -- which is quite another thing.

Communist regimes have the well-known habit of declaring those no longer in favor to be nonpersons. This is the first time that a whole nation has been declared a noncountry.

Speaking of China and of Communists, it is interesting to note that the first veto ever cast by Peking was to prevent the entry of the new nation of Bangladesh.

The self-styled champion of small, "third world" countries gave as classic an example of "great-power chauvinism" as did ever the Soviet Union, against whom the veto was really addressed.

This is all right, of course. The United States had been known to put its own self-interest ahead of a too-tender regard for the interests of small nations.

China's "Realpolitik" veto does, though, chip a rather sizable hole in the argument that the U. N. could never be truly representative or effective until it included the world's most populous nation.

Most discouraging development of all is the approval by the United Nations Colonialism Committee of a resolution recognizing the "inalienable right of the people of Puerto Rico to self-determination and independence."

Although it fell short of demands by Cuba, China and Russia that Puerto Rico be classified outright as a colony of the United States, the resolution is an insult, not only to Americans and Puerto Ricans, but to every other people struggling for identity.

In a referendum conducted in Puerto Rico in 1967 (a referendum is something that has never taken place in Cuba or Tibet or Eastern Europe), the independence movement was defeated by better than 100 to one by those who favored continuation of commonwealth status.

If the votes of those favoring statehood are added, it was more than 160 to one against independence.

The situation had not changed in five years The two Puerto Rican independence parties combined do not command 5 per cent of the electorate, which is the minumum required for representation in the Legislative Assembly.

That a committee of the United Nations, even if obviously politically motivated, could pass such a resolution in the face of such facts makes a mockery of the principles on which the world body was founded.

NATIONAL HEALTH PLAN COMING

Passage by Congress of a National Health Insurance law seems inevitable, unless of course, hospital and medical care costs are drastically reduced, which seems highly unlikely.

One of the leaders in Congress has said that such a law will be passed in the 1973 session, others believe it may be a year later- but all think it will soon become a reality.

When National Health Insurance was forst proposed the American Medical Association bitterly fought it. The results was that it never got past the discussion stage. Now however, the Association has changed its attitude and believes some sort of a national health plan is mandatory.

Mounting costs of surgery, medical attention, hospitalization, medication and home care have make it impossible for millions of people to have the attention they need.

Nothing is more important to our nation and its future than good health, and good health care.

Under the proposed plan, almost everyone would have access to good treatment and good medication, with the government picking up the expense that the individual cannot pay.

Personally, we'd perfer the government not handle it, but there seems no other way to assure continued adequate health care for our people. The richest nation in the world cannot afford to have millions of its people suffering merely because they cannot pay for the health care they need and must have.

BILL OF RIGHTS DAY

Friday, Dec. 15, is a day that all Americans should celebrate in the grand manner. For it was on that day in 1791 that the Bill of Rights, that bulwark of individual liberties, became effective. These first 10 amendments to the U. S. Constitution, guaranteeing freedom of religion, speech, the press, assembly, petition and the right to a fair trial, were not included in the original Constitution on the grounds that that document contained no grant of power to Congress to legislate on any of the subjects with which a bill of rights would deal. Supporters of these protections finally succeeded in getting tham adopted three years after the Constitution was apporved.

A decade or two ago, civil libertarians feared that the Bill of Rights was being dangerously weakened by legislative excesses. Today, they are more worried about what the executive branch is doing. While President Nixon has affirmed his "strong adherence to basic values that the nation believes in and the people believe in," his critics charge that the administration has used "law and order" and "national security" to justify governmental inroads on the Bill of Rights. These critics cite administration actions in arresting demonstrators, attempting to bar newspaper publication of the Pentagon Papers and requiring reporters to testify in court about their confidential sources or information. They also accuse the administration of violating the individual's right to provacy through widespread use of wiretapping and the advocacy of "no-knock" laws and preventive detention.

While the Bill of Rights remains a theoretical scared cow, there is some indication that many Americans support the administration's actions despite the complaints of some constitutional scholars. It might be well for these Americans to ponder the words of Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas' "Each surrender of liberty to the demand of the moment makes easier another, larger surrender. The battle over the Bill of Rights is a never- ending one."

Why can't some people get automobile insurance?

That's one of the important questions relating to personal forms of insurance asked of the Office of Consumer Information of The Travelers Insurance Companies.

Since April, 1971, the Consumer Information Office has been answering questions from members of the public. At last count, more than 50,000 individuals had used the toll-free telephones (or written the Office) to ask insurance- related questions. Every person received an answer either while on the phone or by mail if more detail was wanted.

Recently, the Consumer Information Office put together a booklet which provides answers to the 18 most important personal insurance questions. The answer to "Why can't some people get automobile insurance" given in the booklet is this:

"The truth is, practically everybody can get insurance these days. In the case of auto insurance for example, the insurance industry has worked out rating plans under which each driver is charged his share, in terms of his own individual potential for loss. This potential is measured primarily by who drives, the driving record and how the car is used, which are predicators for future losses.

"For example, if your insurance doesn't get renewed at standard rates because of a less than ideal driving record, it doesn't mean you're uninsurable. Most companies will take the risk of insuring you at a rate probably higher than you're used to paying. (The same idea holds for life, homeowners, and what have you.)

"Even those people who are uninsurable through conventional sources because of an extreme driving record or other accident potential can get insurance coverage.

"Protection is available to them through the Automobile Insurance Plan (Assigned Risks)."

A copy of the booklet, "Answers To Questions People Have Been Asking Us About Insurance," may be obtained by writing to the Office of Sonsumer Information, The Travelers, Hartford, Conn., 06115.

INCENTIVES NEEDED TO DEVELOP NEW ENERGY SOURCES

Industry cannot afford to take the risk of developing new energy sources without assurance of recovering costs, the Atlantic Richfield Company has told its shareholders.

"The nation has the materials to achieve a rational balance of energy supplies, but it must provide the economic incentives to develop it," the company said.

"The future of our country is based on the attainment of three goals: economic, environmental and social, and the real solutions depend on energy," the company reports.

"We must have energy for continueal economic development to meet the needs of an expanding population. A clean environment is contingent upon efficient energy to recycle water, to treat sewage, and to contain air pollutants. Jobs for the unemployed and poor are dependent on industries which will have adequate energy to expand.

"Today, petroleum, both oil and natural gas, supplies 75 per cent of the country's energy. But domestic oil production is not keeping pace with the demand.

"The energy gap can be solved. The United States can continue to chart its course toward a continued sound economy, a clean environment, and social improvements. But the government must develop adequate incentives to make a mix of energy sources available. Industry must make use of these incentives to restore asa reasonable degree of self- sufficiency in the nation," the report concluded.

CONVINCED THE HARD WAY

A woman went into a pet shop and noticed a bird with a large, ragged beak.

"What's that strange looking bird?" she asked the owner.

"That, madam," said the pet shop proprietor, "is a Crunch bird."

"Why do you call him a Crunch bird?" asked the woman.

The man turned to the bird, unlocked the cage and said, "Crunch bird the chair."

The bird flew out of the cage and immediately crunched the chair up into bits.

The woman was amazed. "I'll buy him," she said, thinking of what a good housepet and watchman it would be.

That night her husband came home and took one look at the strange feathered friend. "What in heaven is that?"

"That's a Crunch bird," said the wife.

The husband, in typical fashion, turned in annoyance. "Crunch bird my fanny," he said.

PART OF OUR LIFE

Part of the merchant ship construction program of the Nixon Administration is concerned with the strengthening of the U. S. tanker fleet. This is because, although a large element of the public is not aware of it, tankers are an integral part of the energy industry. As the search for petroleum extends into more and more remote areas of the world, the role of the tanker becomes increasingly important. As an oil publication has commented, "This is the age of the super and the mammoth tanker ..."

While an occasional oil spill draws adverse publicity, the truth is that a modern tanker, coupled with the rigorous antipollution codes under which it operates, is about as environmentally compatible as any human undertaking that has been devised. Also, while the present - day U. S. tanker is not exactly a luxury liner, it does well by its crew. Some tankers have swimming pools, many are air- conditioned, and crews are quartered in private or semi-private rooms. In addition, tankers are well known for the quality of food they serve.

An idea of the importance of the U. S. tanker fleet can be gained from the fact that oil is the world's most valuable seaborne cargo accounting for more than one half of the total tonnage in international trade. Sixty per cent of the world's petroleum moves to market by water. Currently, the world tanker fleet numbers 3,748, about 98 per cent of which are privately owned by oil companies and concerns engaged in the business weigh heavily in forming public opinion, it is absolutely essential for a majority of people to have a reasonably balanced understanding of the industries involved in the maintenance of life as we know it in the United States. Oil tankers are as much a part of tht life as the corner gas station.

DEATH PENALTY IN REVIEW

Capital punishment in the United States is no longer in effect and the decision of the Supreme Court earlier this year that dealt the death penalty a fatal blow, or at least suspended it, is being felt in some celebrated cases. The Richard Speck case in Chicago dramatizes the end of capital punishment as much, or more, than any other murder conviction that was on appeal at the time the high tribunal returned its momentous ruling.

Speck, a derelict, was convicted in the brutal slaying of eight nurses in Chicago and was sentenced to die for the crimes. The Supreme Court decision tied the hands of the State of Illinois in carrying out the mandate of the trial court and Speck was resentenced to long terms in the penitentiary. But the catch in the whole affair is that Speck will be eligible for parole in seven years. Speck has been quoted as saying it would have been better had the state taken his life.

The Supreme Court at least left the door open to the states to rewrite the death penalty statues. Florida is making an effort and other states should follow suit even though there is no assurance the Supreme Court will ever let capital punishment stand up again. Still the effort must be made.

Able prosecutors in all states have argued that the taking of a life on the orders of a trial court does not constitute "cruel and inhuman" punishment and that capital punishment is necessary to deter crime. They emphasize that the victims of crimes had rights that were violated. These prosecutors also cite numerous Biblical references to capital punishment as precedent for state law.

Crime is a staggering problem for the United States. The denial of the rights of the states to inflict capital punishment removes a powerful weapon of law enforcement. It only helps the criminal element. HLH

If you don't exercise regularly, at least take a 40- or 45- minute walk every other day. Those who follow this advice usually find an increase in their working capacity and decreases in their heart rate, blood pressure and percentage of total body fat. Walking is an exercise that practically everyone can follow without fear of injury or developing excessive fatigue. And if time is your problem, just 10 minutes of jogging each day will produce "unexpected and unprecedented" improvement in your physical condition, suggest studies conducted by a California medical clinic.

Malaria, which had raged for centuries on the Island of Ceylon, has been virtually eliminated through use of DDT by 1950. Then use of DDT was abandoned for political reasons, according to Dr. Robert White-Stevens, professor of biology at Rutgers University, and by 1970 the disease had returned to infect over 1 million in the island population of 8 million.

U. N. IS NO PEACE PATH THESE DAYS

It becomes increasingly difficult to subscribe to the proposition, once voiced with the solemnity of a politician envoking the deity at a 4th of July rally, that "the United Nations is the world's only hope for peace."

Perhaps out of native idealism, mixed with guilt about this country's failure to support the old League of Nations, Americans have been more susceptible than most to this cliche. Certainly no people has given the U. N. more support, spiritually as well as financially.

Recent events, however, would seem to convince even the most naive that the United Nations is not only not the world's only hope but it not even a good hope -- not in the world as it is, as it always has been and as it promises to be for the indefinite future.

Not the least of these events were President Nixon's trips to Peking and to Moscow and the understandings and agreements reached there. These have probably done more for the cause of world peace than anything that has occurred in or out of the United Nations since its founding in 1945.

But in the U. N. itself, in the current session, we have seen Taiwan not only stripped of its representation as the official government of China -- which is one thing -- but stripped even of recognition as an entity -- which is quite another thing.

Communist regimes have the well-known habit of declaring those no longer in favor to be nonpersons. This is the first time that a whole nation has been declared a noncountry.

Speaking of China and of Communists, it is interesting to note that the first veto ever cast by Peking was to prevent the entry of the new nation of Bangladesh.

The self-styled champion of small, "third world" countries gave as classic an example of "great-power chauvinism" as did ever the Soviet Union, against whom the veto was really addressed.

This is all right, of course. The United States had been known to put its own self-interest ahead of a too-tender regard for the interests of small nations.

China's "Realpolitik" veto does, though, chip a rather sizable hole in the argument that the U. N could never be truly representative or effective until it included the world's most populous nation.

Most discouraging development of all is the approval by the United Nations Colonialism Committee of a resolution recognizing the "inalienable right of the people of Puerto Rico to self-determination and independence."

Although it fell short of demands by Cuba, China and Russia that Puerto Rico be classified outright as a colony of the United States, the resolution is an insult, not only to Americans and Puerto Ricans, but to every other people struggling for identity.

In a referendum conducted in Puerto Rico in 1967 (a referendum is something that has never taken place in Cuba or Tibet or Eastern Europe), the independence movement was defeated by better than 100 to one by those who favored continuation of commonwealth status.

If the votes of those favoring statehood are added, it was more than 160 to one against independence.

The situation had not changed in five years The two Puerto Rican independence parties combined do not command 5 per cent of the electorate, which is the minumum required for representation in the Legislative Assembly.

That a committee of the United Nations, even if obviously politically motivated, could pass such a resolution in the face of such facts makes a mockery of the principles on which the world body was founded.

NATIONAL HEALTH PLAN COMING

Passage by Congress of a National Health Insurance law seems inevitable, unless of course, hospital and medical care costs are drastically reduced, which seems highly unlikely.

One of the leaders in Congress has said that such a law will be passed in the 1973 session, others believe it may be a year later- but all think it will soon become a reality.

When National Health Insurance was forst proposed the American Medical Association bitterly fought it. The results was that it never got past the discussion stage. Now however, the Association has changed its attitude and believes some sort of a national health plan is mandatory.

Mounting costs of surgery, medical attention, hospitalization, medication and home care have make it impossible for millions of people to have the attention they need.

Nothing is more important to our nation and its future than good health, and good health care.

Under the proposed plan, almost everyone would have access to good treatment and good medication, with the government picking up the expense that the individual cannot pay.

Personally, we'd perfer the government not handle it, but there seems no other way to assure continued adequate health care for our people. The richest nation in the world cannot afford to have millions of its people suffering merely because they cannot pay for the health care they need and must have.

BILL OF RIGHTS DAY

Friday, Dec. 15, is a day that all Americans should celebrate in the grand manner. For it was on that day in 1791 that the Bill of Rights, that bulwark of individual liberties, became effective. These first 10 amendments to the U. S. Constitution, guaranteeing freedom of religion, speech, the press, assembly, petition and the right to a fair trial, were not included in the original Constitution on the grounds that that document contained no grant of power to Congress to legislate on any of the subjects with which a bill of rights would deal. Supporters of these protections finally succeeded in getting tham adopted three years after the Constitution was apporved.

A decade or two ago, civil libertarians feared that the Bill of Rights was being dangerously weakened by legislative excesses. Today, they are more worried about what the executive branch is doing. While President Nixon has affirmed his "strong adherence to basic values that the nation believes in and the people believe in," his critics charge that the administration has used "law and order" and "national security" to justify governmental inroads on the Bill of Rights. These critics cite administration actions in arresting demonstrators, attempting to bar newspaper publication of the Pentagon Papers and requiring reporters to testify in court about their confidential sources or information. They also accuse the administration of violating the individual's right to provacy through widespread use of wiretapping and the advocacy of "no-knock" laws and preventive detention.

While the Bill of Rights remains a theoretical scared cow, there is some indication that many Americans support the administration's actions despite the complaints of some constitutional scholars. It might be well for these Americans to ponder the words of Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas' "Each surrender of liberty to the demand of the moment makes easier another, larger surrender. The battle over the Bill of Rights is a never- ending one."

Why can't some people get automobile insurance?

That's one of the important questions relating to personal forms of insurance asked of the Office of Consumer Information of The Travelers Insurance Companies.

Since April, 1971, the Consumer Information Office has been answering questions from members of the public. At last count, more than 50,000 individuals had used the toll-free telephones (or written the Office) to ask insurance- related questions. Every person received an answer either while on the phone or by mail if more detail was wanted.

Recently, the Consumer Information Office put together a booklet which provides answers to the 18 most important personal insurance questions. The answer to "Why can't some people get automobile insurance" given in the booklet is this:

"The truth is, practically everybody can get insurance these days. In the case of auto insurance for example, the insurance industry has worked out rating plans under which each driver is charged his share, in terms of his own individual potential for loss. This potential is measured primarily by who drives, the driving record and how the car is used, which are predicators for future losses.

"For example, if your insurance doesn't get renewed at standard rates because of a less than ideal driving record, it doesn't mean you're uninsurable. Most companies will take the risk of insuring you at a rate probably higher than you're used to paying. (The same idea holds for life, homeowners, and what have you.)

"Even those people who are uninsurable through conventional sources because of an extreme driving record or other accident potential can get insurance coverage.

"Protection is available to them through the Automobile Insurance Plan (Assigned Risks)."

A copy of the booklet, "Answers To Questions People Have Been Asking Us About Insurance," may be obtained by writing to the Office of Sonsumer Information, The Travelers, Hartford, Conn., 06115.

INCENTIVES NEEDED TO DEVELOP NEW ENERGY SOURCES

Industry cannot afford to take the risk of developing new energy sources without assurance of recovering costs, the Atlantic Richfield Company has told its shareholders.

"The nation has the materials to achieve a rational balance of energy supplies, but it must provide the economic incentives to develop it," the company said.

"The future of our country is based on the attainment of three goals: economic, environmental and social, and the real solutions depend on energy," the company reports.

"We must have energy for continueal economic development to meet the needs of an expanding population. A clean environment is contingent upon efficient energy to recycle water, to treat sewage, and to contain air pollutants. Jobs for the unemployed and poor are dependent on industries which will have adequate energy to expand.

"Today, petroleum, both oil and natural gas, supplies 75 per cent of the country's energy. But domestic oil production is not keeping pace with the demand.

"The energy gap can be solved. The United States can continue to chart its course toward a continued sound economy, a clean environment, and social improvements. But the government must develop adequate incentives to make a mix of energy sources available. Industry must make use of these incentives to restore asa reasonable degree of self- sufficiency in the nation," the report concluded.

CONVINCED THE HARD WAY

A woman went into a pet shop and noticed a bird with a large, ragged beak.

"What's that strange looking bird?" she asked the owner.

"That, madam," said the pet shop proprietor, "is a Crunch bird."

"Why do you call him a Crunch bird?" asked the woman.

The man turned to the bird, unlocked the cage and said, "Crunch bird the chair."

The bird flew out of the cage and immediately crunched the chair up into bits.

The woman was amazed. "I'll buy him," she said, thinking of what a good housepet and watchman it would be.

That night her husband came home and took one look at the strange feathered friend. "What in heaven is that?"

"That's a Crunch bird," said the wife.

The husband, in typical fashion, turned in annoyance. "Crunch bird my fanny," he said.

PART OF OUR LIFE

Part of the merchant ship construction program of the Nixon Administration is concerned with the strengthening of the U. S. tanker fleet. This is because, although a large element of the public is not aware of it, tankers are an integral part of the energy industry. As the search for petroleum extends into more and more remote areas of the world, the role of the tanker becomes increasingly important. As an oil publication has commented, "This is the age of the super and the mammoth tanker ..."

While an occasional oil spill draws adverse publicity, the truth is that a modern tanker, coupled with the rigorous antipollution codes under which it operates, is about as environmentally compatible as any human undertaking that has been devised. Also, while the present - day U. S. tanker is not exactly a luxury liner, it does well by its crew. Some tankers have swimming pools, many are air- conditioned, and crews are quartered in private or semi-private rooms. In addition, tankers are well known for the quality of food they serve.

An idea of the importance of the U. S. tanker fleet can be gained from the fact that oil is the world's most valuable seaborne cargo accounting for more than one half of the total tonnage in international trade. Sixty per cent of the world's petroleum moves to market by water. Currently, the world tanker fleet numbers 3,748, about 98 per cent of which are privately owned by oil companies and concerns engaged in the business weigh heavily in forming public opinion, it is absolutely essential for a majority of people to have a reasonably balanced understanding of the industries involved in the maintenance of life as we know it in the United States. Oil tankers are as much a part of tht life as the corner gas station.

DEATH PENALTY IN REVIEW

Capital punishment in the United States is no longer in effect and the decision of the Supreme Court earlier this year that dealt the death penalty a fatal blow, or at least suspended it, is being felt in some celebrated cases. The Richard Speck case in Chicago dramatizes the end of capital punishment as much, or more, than any other murder conviction that was on appeal at the time the high tribunal returned its momentous ruling.

Speck, a derelict, was convicted in the brutal slaying of eight nurses in Chicago and was sentenced to die for the crimes. The Supreme Court decision tied the hands of the State of Illinois in carrying out the mandate of the trial court and Speck was resentenced to long terms in the penitentiary. But the catch in the whole affair is that Speck will be eligible for parole in seven years. Speck has been quoted as saying it would have been better had the state taken his life.

The Supreme Court at least left the door open to the states to rewrite the death penalty statues. Florida is making an effort and other states should follow suit even though there is no assurance the Supreme Court will ever let capital punishment stand up again. Still the effort must be made.

Able prosecutors in all states have argued that the taking of a life on the orders of a trial court does not constitute "cruel and inhuman" punishment and that capital punishment is necessary to deter crime. They emphasize that the victims of crimes had rights that were violated. These prosecutors also cite numerous Biblical references to capital punishment as precedent for state law.

Crime is a staggering problem for the United States. The denial of the rights of the states to inflict capital punishment removes a powerful weapon of law enforcement. It only helps the criminal element. HLH

"I hear they are going to give a cocktail party when your new novel comes out — but they're going to hold it in a telephone booth."

"I must say I haven't read a word you've written. But I have read all the reviews of your books, and some of them didn't sound half bad."

"What do you do besides write books?"

"Why don't you write a book on ecology? Ecology's big right now."

"I wish my wife were here to meet you. She's the one in the family who's gaga over literary lions."

"Willoughby, this one really would have knocked them dead 50 years ago when the Saturday Evening Post was going strong. What do you plan to do with it now — bury it?"

"I told you before you started the book I didn't like the idea in the first place. Now that you've written the book, I don't like the idea in the second place."

"We'll be glad to send you your royalties, Willoughby, as soon as they amount to more than the postage it would take to mail the letter."

"Why don't you write a novel about astrology, Willoughby? Nobody can write a book on astrology that won't make a profit."

"Why don't you spend your winters on the French Riviera like most successful writers do?"

"I'm afraid you'll have to go back to driving a cab for the Christmas season, Willoughby, or else Santa Claus won't come to our house this year."

"If that guy is a literary lion, then I must have forgotten what a mouse looks like."

"He went to the book store for an autographing session, and all the people who had bought his book showed up and demanded their money back."

"Why don't you write a book on how to be a success, Willoughby? The market should be ripe for a good fairy tale—that is, if it's funny enough."

Immunization clinic Friday

DEXTER — A free immunization clinic, sponsored by the Missouri Division of Health and Dexter physicians will be held Friday in Dexter public schools.

A recently passed House bill makes provisions for adding rubella and measles to the list of the required immunizations for school attendance. Students are encouraged to obtain rubella and measles immunizations in the expectation that they will be required for attendance in the 1973-74 school year.

The clinic will make available a combined vaccine against the two diseases. Measles and rubella (German measles or 3-day measles) are acute contagious diseases caused by viruses that are usually spread by children.

Measles, usually harmless, can be a serious health problem. In the past they have accounted for several hundred deaths in children each year.

Rubella is generally a mild disease in children, but the virus may cause birth defects when it strikes pregnant women.

Public health officials say widespread immunizations of children will help reduce the number of potential carriers of the disease, thus avoidng the exposure of pregnant women to the virus.

Children should not be vaccinated if they are sick with a high fever, are being treated for cancer or leukemia, or if they have received oral polio or small pox vaccine within the last 30 days.

If a child is allergic to eggs, feathers, chicken, duck or neomycin, a physician should be consulted before the vaccine is given.

Pre-school and kindergarten children may receive immunization at Southwest Elementary School at 11 a.m. Children in grades one through six may received their immunization at 11:30 a..

Central Elementary School will give immunizations for preschool and kindergarten children at 1 p.m. and grades one through six at 1:15 p.m.

Layton-Miller

Mrs. Joseph Willis Layton Jr.

Four candelabra and an arrangement of large, white mums with jade and leather leaves completed the altar scene in First United Methodist Church for the wedding of Debra Kay Miller and Joseph Willis Layton Jr. on Oct. 31 at 8 p.m. The Rev. Joe Black of Cape Girardeau performed the double- ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles L. Miller Sr. of Sikeston, and Layton is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Layton Sr. of Charleston.

Mrs. Mary Jane Childress, organist, played pre-nuptial selections. Prior to "The Wedding March" from the "Sound of Music", soloist Joel Allen sang, "With These Hands". While the couple knelt for the benediction, he sang, "The Lord's Prayer."

The bride, given in marriage by her father, chose for her wedding a formal - length gown of Chanti-lace over taffeta. The close-fitting bodice featured a natural waistline and a deep Renaissance neckline edged with a jeweled, scalloped-lace ruffle. The close-fitting lace sleeves were enhanced with ruffles matching that of the neckline, giving an Edwardian look. Soft gathers at the waist formed fullness for the bouffant skirt that was worn over a Southern bell hoop. The front of the skirt was plain with cascades of scalloped- lace ruffles extending to the bottom of the train that swept to a full, circular cathedral length.

Her headdress was a Queen Ann tiara of imported Chantilly lace and was scalloped all around. It was enhanced with a double Dior bow of imported silk organza and attached to an elbow-length, three-tiered veil of English silk illusion.

She carried an old-fashioned cascade bouquet with a cluster of white roses and mums symbolic of the months of their births.

Mrs. Bonnie Miller of Sikeston, sister-in-law of the bride, served as matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Mrs. Margaret Layton of Charleston, sister-in-law of the groom, and Miss Kathy Frazier of Charleston, cousin of the groom.

They wore identical floor-length gown of blue organza with full, camelot sleeves and mandarin necklines. Their headpieces were matching blue organza Dior bows. Each wore blue peau de soie slippers and carried a long-stemmed pink rose.

Jon Layton of Charleston, brother of the groom, served as best man. Groomsmen were Charles L. Miller Jr. of Sikeston, brother of the bride, and Scott Frazier of Charleston, cousin of the groom. Kenny Larkins of Dorena and Mike Renaud of Charleston, cousins of the groom, were ushers. The men of the wedding party wore black tuxedos and blue ruffled shirts with white boutonnieres.

The birde's mother was attired in a pastel blue knit dress with a long-sleeved lace illusion bodice. The dress had a natural waistline with an accordian pleaded skirt. She chose silver accessories.

The groom's mother wore a pink, peau de soie, princess - style dress accented with a beaded waistline and coat ensemble with matching accessories.

Both mothers wore white carnation corsages trimmed with white net and accented with blue ribbon.

Honored guests were the bride's grandmothers, Mrs. Charlie N. Miller of Sikeston; the groom's paternal grandmother, Mrs. Carl Layton of Charleston; and the groom's maternal grandparents Mr. and Mrs. Howard Howlett of Charleston.

Immediately following the ceremony, a reception was held in Epworth Hall of the church.

The bride's table was centered with a three-tiered wedding cake with a cascade of white roses down the side. Nestled on top were a bride and groom standing within an outlined, white lace heart.

Punch was served from a large crystal bowl encircled by a garland of ivy. Servers were Martha Allen, Jackie Old, Debbie Shell, Libby Whitworth, Sondra Stewart and Donna Mulcahy, all of Sikeston. Rice bags were given to the guests by Sara Beth Renaud.

After a wedding trip to the Great Smoky Mountains, the couple spent time in Charleston and Sikeston at their parents' homes. On Nov. 22, the groom departed for Thailand where he will be stationed with the Air Force for a year. The bride plans to continue her work as radiology secretary at Missouri Delta Community Hospital until the groom's return.

An open-house shower was given in honor of Mrs. Debra Miller Layton by Mrs. Shad Old Jr., Mrs. George Hale III, Mrs. Joe Schaefer, Mrs. Lennie Whitworth and Miss Libby Whitworth on Nov. 19 at Security National Bank's community room.

The refreshment table was overlaid with a brown lace table cloth with a centerpiece of autumn flowers. Mrs. Hale served punch from a large crystal bowl. Coffee was served from a silver service by Mrs. Whitworth.

A bride doll centered the gift table which was covered with a white cloth. Mrs. Jackie Old and Miss Libby Whitworth assisted the bride in opening gifts.

On the evening of Oct. 28, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Layton, Sr. entertained with a rehearsal dinner at Luber's Restaurant in Sikeston. The guests were seated at a U-shaped table which was decorated with silver candelabra with ivy entwined and white tapers. The centerpiece for the bridal table was an arrangement of white mums.

Mr. and Mrs. James Donald Payne

Payne-Vangilder

GRANT CITY — Miss Sherry Ann Vangilder of Grant City and James Donald Payne of Sikeston were married Nov. 25 at Richwood United Methodist Church in Grant City by the Rev. Larry Kennedy.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Vangilder of Grant City, and Payne is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Don Payne of Sikeston.

The altar featured a double row of white candles accented by ferns and large baskets of white gladiolas and red roses.

Red and white bows marked the pews.

Mrs. Sandy Evans was pianist. Roger Tolliver of Sikeston sang, "A Time For Us" and "We've Only Just Begun", before the wedding march.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a formal gown of sata peau and Venise lace. The lace accented the bodice, the high neckline and the Queen Ann sleeves. The skirt and chapel - length train was highlighted with a wide, fluted, pleated flounce at the bottom. Her elbow - length veil was of white illusion. She carried a bouquet of red and white roses.

Miss Barbara White of Sikeston was maid of honor. She wore a long gown with an off-white bodice and red skirt made of crepe and carried a single, long-stemmed red rose.

Bridesmaids were Debbie Vangilder of Grant City, sister of the bride, and Debbie Hosey, sister of the groom, now living in Germany. They also wore gowns of red and off-white crepe and carried roses.

Monica Lanther of Chaffee was flower girl. She was attired in a long, red gown with white lace trim. She carried a white basket of red and white roses.

Ken Elliott of Memphis, Tenn., was ringbearer.

Claude Old of Sikeston was best man, and groomsmen were Jim Butler of Sikeston and Allan Sherry of St. Louis. Ushers were Ronnie Sherry of Collinsville, Ill., uncle of the bride, and Danny Mayfield of Sikeston.

Candlelighters were Connie Bizzell of St. Louis, cousin of the bride, and David Pobst of Oran.

A reception was held in the church basement. Decorations were of red and white with white, wedding bells. The table was decorated with a white, table cloth and a three-tiered wedding cake surrounded by red and white roses. At each end of the table were a crystal punch bowl and two, three-tier, silver candelabra.

Cheryl Bizzell attended the guest book, and hostesses were Mrs. Gloria Perrot of Carbondale, Ill., cousin of the bride, and Judy Payne of Cape Girardeau.

The bride wore a long-sleeve, pink, double-knit dress with beige lace trim for her going-away ensemble.

The groom is employed at Marks Food Mart, and the bride is employed by J. C. Penney Company, both in Sikeston, where the couple will live on Route Two.

Out- of - town guests for the ceremony were: Mr. and Mrs. Woodie Smith, Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Sherry and son and Mr. and Mrs. Ron Perrott and son of Carbondale, Ill.; Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Whittom and family and Mr. and Mrs. Ronnie Sherry and sons of Collinsville, Ill.; Mr. and Mrs. Jim Elliott and family and Mr. and Mrs. Bobby Pearce of Memphis, Tenn.; Mrs. Allan Sherry and son and Miss Robin Young of St. Louis; Mrs. John Bizzell and daughters of Florissant; Mr. and Mrs. O. V. Payne and family of Cape Girardeau; and Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Sherry, grandparents of the bride, from Crowder.

A bridal shower was given for the bride on Nov. 14 at Richwood Methodist Church by Mrs. Marilyn Patterson, Mrs. Sadie Patterson, Mrs. Suzie Cline, Mrs. Margaret Rogers, Mrs. Lucille Burris, Mrs. Carolyn Pobst, Miss Barbara White and Mrs. Mable Chism.

The decorations were red and white, and the gift table was covered with red taffeta overlaid with white lace. The centerpiece was a musical bride which played the wedding march. Cookies and punch were served to the 49 who attended.

Mail proves homosexuals as one group are unhappy lot

Dear Ann Landers: Let me begin by saying I am a homosexual, over 30, who neither flaunts his mode of life nor makes excuses for it. I would like to comment on the letter from the young homosexual who signed himself "On Edge." He asked you to help persuade his friend to let him move out of his parents' home into his place. The friend balked on the grounds that two single guys living together might just as well post a sign, "We are gay." Your advice was "You have all the problems you can handle. Don't add another by trying to move in with an unenthusiastic roommate. Get a place of your own."

I heartily agree that the young man should find a place of his own, but I I take issue with your assumption that a homosexual is automatically burdened with problems just because he is gay. Come on, Ann, do you really believe that?

Homosexuals are no unhappier than anyone else. True, our lives aren't all peaches and cream, but then whose is?

I hope you will disabuse the public of the old myth that homosexuals are wretched and miserable. Please help tear down another wall of ignorance.--- Avid Reader

Dear Av.: It is foolish to make a statement that all members of ANY group are one way or another. Groups are made up of individuals and each individual is different.

I do not agree with your statement that as a group, homosexuals are no unhappier than others. My mail reflects the opposite. And don't tell my mail comes from the troubled, the unbalanced or the lunatic fringe. I hear from everybody.

Some homosexuals are content with their lot, but most of them would be straight if they had a choice. The most poorly- adjusted homosexuals are the closest queens who have a crippling fear of being found out. The anxiety and conflict in their lives are hideous. The saddest of all are the homosexuals who have been read off by their families. They feel abandoned, despised and guilty--- and their name is legion.

Dear Ann Landers: Inasmuch as the most persistent source of your correspondence seems to be from the short leg of the matrimonial triangle, I would like to propose the following theorem:

The ratio of spouses unfaithful to the marriage contract by the overt act of commission is directly proportional to the number of spouses unfaithful to the marriage contract by the covert act of omission.

Let me start your list of "covert acts" by giving you an example.

1. Passive submission is the next thing to being out of town. It does nothing for anybody.

2. Sex with a profit motive is prostitution. I know because I'm there now.--- Overt Spouse But Not By Choice

Dear Overt: Your theorem, translated into ninth grade English, is:

1. Husbands who cheat do so because their wives are dead from the neck both ways.

2. If a man has to offer his wife a special bonus for bestowing her sexual favors, she is nothing more than a prostitute. Your signature suggests that you are getting sex on the outside because the home- grown variety is unsatisfactory.

No one can judge the merits of a sexual relationship except the individuals involved. But this I can tell you, Buster, some men would rather eat garbage in a restaurant than a wholesome meal at home. Why? Don't ask me. It's one of those mysteries with a thousand answers-- depending on who is doing the answering.

Are your parents too strict? Hard to reach? Ann Landers' booklet, "Bugged By Parents? How to Get More Freedom," could help you bridge the generation gap. Send 50c in coing with your request and a long, stamped, self- addressed envelope to this newspaper.

PARMA-- Coach Mark Rascher's Parma Pirates and the New Madrid Indians braved threatening weather and Parma came out a 58- 56 victor Tuesday night in New Madrid County League action.

The game was close from the beginning with both teams displaying full- court, man- to- man, pressing defenses. Parma opened a slim 13- 12 first quarter lead, but New Madrid bounced right back, outscoring the hosts 18- 16 in the second period to give the Indians a 30- 29 halftime advantage.

In the third quarter the Parma defense began to take its toll. New Madrid, weak off the bench, lost its offensive punch and managed only eight points while Parma pumped in 16. The Pirates led going into the final period, 44- 38. The Indians outscored the hosts in the fourth quarter, 18- 14, but couldn't make up all of the six- point advantage the Pirates had built in the first three quarters.

Rufus Barnes led all scorers 28 big points for the victors. New Madrid scorers were paced by Steve Glenn with 14 and Phil Ransburgh with 12 points.

Parma also took the B— game, a 45- 36 overtime decision in which the hosts outscored the Indians 9- 0 in the overtime period. Darrell Ramsey and Donnie Thatch scored 12 points apiece to lead the junior Pirates. Robert Sims and Donald Jackson scored eight points each to lead the visitors.

Mat season opens Thursday

By DAVID ZIEGENHORN

In SHS wrestling Coach John Heacox's own words, "We're a young team lacking experience in some places, but no wrestling team will dominate us."

The Sikeston High School wrestlers open their 1972-73 season Thursday night as they battle one of the toughest teams they may face all season in Cape Girardeau Central. In two head- to- head contests last season, the Bulldogs and Tigers each won one.

This season has also brought with it something new to the wrestling circuit, the formation of the SeMo Wrestling Conference. The conference is made up of five schools; Cape Central, Charleston, Dexter, Jackson and Sikeston.

The five schools will meet in an all- day tournament to determine who shall be the champion of the SeMo Conference.

The Bulldog grapplers may not be quite as strong as last season, Heacox admits, but the determination of each young man to gain a starting berth on either varsity or junior varsity has been excellent. In fact, this week's practice sessions have been devoted to wrestle- offs between team members to determine who will be wrestling varsity and junior varsity.

The varsity lineup in the 12 weight classes has pretty well been established for the first couple of matches. This is how it will look for the varsity squad Thursday night:

98- pound division - Steve Nowell, sophomore

105- pound division - Tom Bridger, sophomore

112- pound division- Scott Hutchinson, freshman

119- pound division- Phil Stinson, junior

126- pound division- Bill Lewis, junior

132- pound division- Blake Nowell, senior

138- pound division- Lee Vaughn, senior

145- pound division- Leonard Davis, senior

155- pound division- Ron Blankenship, sophomore

167- pound division- Jerry Wilder, senior

185- pound division- forfeit (no wrestler from Sikeston in this weight class)

Heavyweight division- Bill Harlow, senior

Heacox was quick to point out that the squad is weak in the heavier weight classes. For instance, Bill Harlow is the only eligible wrestler for the heavyweight division, and Harlow will be down after Christmas to the 185- pound weight class which is now vacant. However, Harlow's switching of weight divisions will leave the heavyweight division vacant.

Many of Heacox's varsity wrestlers have good experience. Steve Nowell was undefeated in the 98-pound division last year. Phil Stinson also went undefeated (16-0) last season on junior varsity, while Bill Lewis was 15-1 last season as a junior varsity wrestler.

Senior Blake Nowell is also starting his fourth year as a varsity wrestler, holding as much tenure and as much experience as any matman in Southeast Missouri.

Varsity wrestlers

District leader records 6th win

ANNA, Ill. — Southeast Missouri's and The Daily Standard's top - rated Cape Girardeau Central Tigers made rather easy work of their Illinois hosts Tuesday night as they charged to their sixth win without a defeat, thumping the hosting Indians, 75-47.

The Bengals started slow, struggling to take a 13-10 first quarter lead, then opened up with 20 point performances in the final three quarters while holding their opponents under 15 to drop them to 2-2.

Hunter Stiegmeyer pumped in 22 points to lead the Tigers' victory while Dick Buston added 15. Allan Brimm hit 12 for the hosts.

Cape's junior varsity started the evening with a 52-34 victory behind the 10-point leadership of Cliff Ford.

Coach Dan Milligan's Tigers face one of the Leadbelt's leading cage units, Farmington, Saturday night.

I had a very nice time last weekend on my trip to Columbia to visit my son Tony, but Mother and Daddy had some serious troubles. A fire under the fireplace in their new house caused about $2,000 damage. Daddy's brother was sleeping in one of the basement bedrooms and was almost overcome by smoke but fourtunately no one got hurt. Tommy and Annette are planning to visit down there soon, so maybe I'll know more about it when they get home.

Mat season opens Thursday

By DAVID ZIEGENHORN

In SHS wrestling Coach John Heacox's own words, "We're a young team lacking experience in some places, but no wrestling team will dominate us."

The Sikeston High School wrestlers open their 1972-73 season Thursday night as they battle one of the toughest teams they may face all season in Cape Girardeau Central. In two head- to- head contests last season, the Bulldogs and Tigers each won one.

This season has also brought with it something new to the wrestling circuit, the formation of the SeMo Wrestling Conference. The conference is made up of five schools; Cape Central, Charleston, Dexter, Jackson and Sikeston.

The five schools will meet in an all- day tournament to determine who shall be the champion of the SeMo Conference.

In fact, this week's practice sessions have been devoted to wrestle- offs between team members to determine who will be wrestling varsity and junior varsity.

The varsity lineup in the 12 weight classes has pretty well been established for the first couple of matches. This is how it will look for the varsity squad Thursday night:

98- pound division - Steve Nowell, sophomore

105- pound division - Tom Bridger, sophomore

112- pound division- Scott Hutchinson, freshman

119- pound division- Phil Stinson, junior

126- pound division- Bill Lewis, junior

132- pound division- Blake Nowell, senior

138- pound division- Lee Vaughn, senior

145- pound division- Leonard Davis, senior

155- pound division- Ron Blankenship, sophomore

167- pound division- Jerry Wilder, senior

185- pound division- forfeit (no wrestler from Sikeston in this weight class)

Heavyweight division- Bill Harlow, senior

Heacox was quick to point out that the squad is weak in the heavier weight classes. For instance, Bill Harlow is the only eligible wrestler for the heavyweight division, and Harlow will be down after Christmas to the 185- pound weight class which is now vacant. However, Harlow's switching of weight divisions will leave the heavyweight division vacant.

Many of Heacox's varsity wrestlers have good experience. Steve Nowell was undefeated in the 98-pound division last year. Phil Stinson also went undefeated (16-0) last season on junior varsity, while Bill Lewis was 15-1 last season as a junior varsity wrestler.

Senior Blake Nowell is also starting his fourth year as a varsity wrestler, holding as much tenure and as much experience as any matman in Southeast Missouri.

Seniors Lee Vaughn and Bill Harlow are each in their fourth year as grapplers with junior varsity as well as varsity experience behind them.

I had a very nice time last weekend on my trip to Columbia to visit my son Tony, but Mother and Daddy had some serious troubles. A fire under the fireplace in their new house caused about $2,000 damage. Daddy's brother was sleeping in one of the basement bedrooms and was almost overcome by smoke but fourtunately no one got hurt. Tommy and Annette are planning to visit down there soon, so maybe I'll know more about it when they get home.

It was sad news to friends and acquaintances when a message came from St. Louis Tuesday night, that Mrs. Oscar E. Royse, formerly Miss Rowena Hay, had passed away at Barnes Hospital in St. Louis. Her death was particularly distressing as she gave her life in bringing forth a boy babe, who joined its mother in death soon after.

What's the law?

The case of the persecuted sign

By Jack Strauss, LL.B.

George lived in a neighborhood that was so exclusive it wasn't only tough to get in, but it was just as tough to get out. As example, when he decided to sell his house he discovered the existence of an ordinance that prohibited any resident from erecting a "For Sale" sign on his property.

Taking exception to the ordinance, George attacked its validity in court.

"If I were a 'For Sale' sign," he told the judge, "I'd complain that I was being discriminated against. After all, no other kind of signs are prohibited by the ordinance. Consequently, it's unconstitutional, particularly since it prevents me from selling my house."

"A municipality," responded a local official, "has the right to regulate the erection of signs for the purpose of public safety and for aesthetic reasons. And in this case 'For Sale' signs are prohibited for both reasons. They look terrible and are likely to distract motorists. Therefore, the ordinance is both reasonable and valid."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you uphold the validity of the ordinance?

This is how the judge ruled: NO! The judge held that the ordinance, which only prohibits "For Sale" signs, is unreasonable since it cannot be said that a "For Sale" sign affects the beauty of a community any more than any other type of sign.

And, as far as such signs being a distraction to motorists, they are no more of a distraction than Christmas decorations, which are not prohibited by any ordinance. Consequently, concluded the judge, the ordinance is an unconstitutional invasion of George's property rights.

POLLY'S POINTERS

Perspiration Stains Removed By Vinegar

By POLLY CRAMER

DEAR POLLY—Jane could try using white vinegar on the perspiration stains around the armholes of the dresses she wears while working in the restaurant. I have found this works on dresses, slips and bras. Pour vinegar on the stains, let stand a little while and wash as usual. If the stains have been there for some time it may take a couple of treatments before they disappear. When possible, it is best to treat them before a garment is washed. My aunt says the tablets or powder used for cleaning dentures also work, but I have never tried it. Also rubbing alcohol is often used but I have never tried it as the vinegar does the job. One of your daily readers.—PEARL

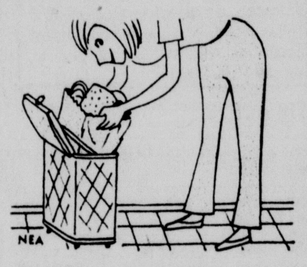
DEAR GIRLS—Be sure to test first any treatment to be used on colored clothes. When color is removed along with the stains SOMETIMES it can be restored by holding the damp stain over ammonia fumes.—POLLY

Polly's Problem

DEAR POLLY—Will indoor-outdoor carpet that gets soaked all the way through from a leaking washing machine mildew, rot or mold? Mine took over a week to dry and then dried only after the rug was shampooed. Is there something in rug shampoo which makes it dry faster? My rubber-backed carpet was glued down but is now pulled away from the floor in several places. I would like to get answers as soon as possible.—MARTHA

DEAR POLLY—I have a Pet Peeve which no doubt is as annoying to others as to me, especially people with poor or failing eyesight. This Peeve concerns the instructions in small letters on plastic bottles and containers, especially those containing medicine. Said directions are extremely difficult to read because of the small letters PLUS the fact they are often printed in raised letters, the same color and material as the container. I think your column is about the best of anything in the newspaper. (Thanks from Polly.)—N. S.

DEAR POLLY—I keep an extra large paper bag in my clothes hamper so that all I have to do is lift out the bag and take it to the washer. I empty the soiled clothes and put the bag back in the hamper to catch some more clothes.—M. C.



DEAR POLLY — I am saving tubes that the new potato chips come in and will fill them with home-made Christmas cookies. When they reached the top of the landslide, Cernan radioed Mission control: "Man, this has been a trip. We're really on top of this thing." Then he looked above him at South Massif and said, "That is a hiiiigh mountain."

At one point, the television camera, remotely controlled from Mission control, focused on a point of light rising in the black sky over the mountain.

The view zoomed in and the light pinpoint resolved into the earth, a blue half-ball streaked with white.

Another time, as Cernan and Schmitt climbed a steep hill, their breath came in labored gasps. When they were small figures in the distance of the television view, Mission Control called them back for a rake tool.

Schmitt objected sharply, saying it was difficult to climb.

Later, he told Mission control "I don't stay angry long."

If climbing hills was difficult, coming down in the light lunar gravity was a joy. The astronauts, keeping their feet together, hopped like kangaroos.

"Hippity hop, hippity hop, hippity hopping-alooong," sang Cernann as he came down hill, covering six and eight feet at a bound.

POLLY'S POINTERS

Perspiration Stains Removed By Vinegar

By POLLY CRAMER

DEAR POLLY—Jane could try using white vinegar on the perspiration stains around the armholes of the dresses she wears while working in the restaurant. I have found this works on dresses, slips and bras. Pour vinegar on the stains, let stand a little while and wash as usual. If the stains have been there for some time it may take a couple of treatments before they disappear. When possible, it is best to treat them before a garment is washed. My aunt says the tablets or powder used for cleaning dentures also work, but I have never tried it. Also rubbing alcohol is often used but I have never tried it as the vinegar does the job. One of your daily readers.—PEARL

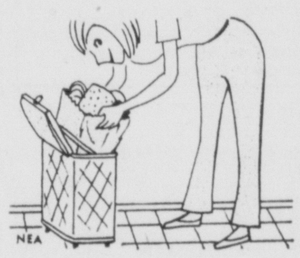
DEAR GIRLS—Be sure to test first any treatment to be used on colored clothes. When color is removed along with the stains SOMETIMES it can be restored by holding the damp stain over ammonia fumes.—POLLY

Polly's Problem

DEAR POLLY—Will indoor-outdoor carpet that gets soaked all the way through from a leaking washing machine mildew, rot or mold? Mine took over a week to dry and then dried only after the rug was shampooed. Is there something in rug shampoo which makes it dry faster? My rubber-backed carpet was glued down but is now pulled away from the floor in several places. I would like to get answers as soon as possible.—MARTHA

DEAR POLLY—I have a Pet Peeve which no doubt is as annoying to others as to me, especially people with poor or failing eyesight. This Peeve concerns the instructions in small letters on plastic bottles and containers, especially those containing medicine. Said directions are extremely difficult to read because of the small letters PLUS the fact they are often printed in raised letters, the same color and material as the container. I think your column is about the best of anything in the newspaper. (Thanks from Polly.)—N. S.

DEAR POLLY—I keep an extra large paper bag in my clothes hamper so that all I have to do is lift out the bag and take it to the washer. I empty the soiled clothes and put the bag back in the hamper to catch some more clothes.—M. C.



DEAR POLLY — I am saving tubes that the new potato chips come in and will fill them with home-made Christmas cookies. They will be decorated with foil or adhesive-backed paper to make nice gifts for the children's teachers or friends. Cookies will stay quite fresh in these containers.—MRS. M. E. M.

Whistle stays

DAYTON, Ohio (AP) — Residents of suburban West Carrollton made such a fuss over the Oxford Paper Co.'s loud steam whistle, the company finally had to do something about it.

People like the 70- year- old whistle so much that when the company announced it was ending the four times daily rooftop shriek for an electric buzzer, it had a public relations problem on its hands.

Suburban residents said the steam blasts helped them wake up or remember to take medicine or call their children home.

"Since so many wanted it, we will keep the whistle," mill manager Glenn Field said.

Communications tax will be phased out

You may think old taxes never die, but one has been sentenced to a slow death beginning Jan. 1.

A hangover from World War II, the 10 per cent federal excise tax on communications services, is slated for extermination Jan. 1, 1982, with annual reductions until then.

The 10- year reduction schedule was established by the Excise, Estate and Gift Tax Adjustment Act of 1970.

Beginning Jan. 1, Southwestern Bell customers will pay nine per cent instead of 10 per cent federal excise tax, according to Mark Rudloff, manager of the company's Sikeston office.

Rate reductions of one per cent are scheduled to begin the first of each succeeding year until the first day of 1982 when the last segment will die, Rudloff said.

"For years," he said, "the Bell system has protested and urged repeal of this tax, which applies only to communications services and not to other utilities. Although we felt it should have been eliminated at the end of the World War II Emergency, we are gratified to know the end of this unfair burden on our customers is in sight."

$1,000 given for toy drive

NEW MADRID -- International Brotherhood of Boilmakers Local 27 officials of St. Louis presented a $1,000 check Tuesday to New Madrid Jaycees to supplement their annual drive for Christmas toys for needy children.

Election set for Charmin

CAPE GIRARDEAU — The National Labor Relations Board has set Dec. 21 and 22 as the dates for a representation election at the Charmin Paper Products Cape Girardeau plant, according to plant manager Jim Bowman.

Of the plant's 650 employes, 541 are eligible to vote in the election, which will determine if they wish to remain non-union or be represented by the United Paperworkers International Union or the International Brotherhood of Teamsters.

In previous elections held in 1969 and 1971, Charmin employes elected to remain non-union by rejecting the United Papermakers and Paperworkers Union by more than three-to - one margins.

Payments up

JEFFERSON CITY — Herman Julien, Director of the Division of Employment Security, has announced that payments to insured jobless workers in Missouri increased from October to November, but were 6.2 per cent under payments in November of last year.

Unemployment benefit payments for this area were: Cape Girardeau, $129,036; Caruthersville, $18,318; Kennett, $31,047; Poplar Bluff, $110,745; and Sikeston, $108,900.

The average benefits check was $49.84.

Bond appoints Asheroft

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — John Ashcroft, 30-yearold Springfield attorney, was tabbed by Missouri's Gov.-elect Christopher S. Bond, today to become state auditor Jan. 8.

Ashcroft would serve the remaining two years of Bond's term in the auditor's office.

Under Bond's administration, the office took a grading approach to the performance of state agencies, rather than just giving fiscal reports.

Ashcroft, unsuccessful congressional candidate in the GOP primary in the 7th District, said, "I think one should look beyond mere fiscal integrity...we should consider the efficiency of the office. I would hope to continue the professional approach established by Kit Bond and his office."

Ashcroft said he had no definite idea as to whom he would appoint as his chief auditor. Bond's top deputy, Robert L. James, 32, was named chief of the new Office of Administration.

Ashcroft, who sat at a news conference in Bond's office with his wife, Janet, is a Yale man, having graduated in 1964. He was graduated from the University of Chicago Law School in 1967, and Janet was graduated from the same school a year later.

Ashcroft, who narrowly lost to Gene Taylor, former national GOP committeeman, in the 7th District primary, is an associate professor at Southwest Missouri State University in Springfield, where he teaches business law.

"John Ashcroft is a man of great ability and will serve the state of Missouri with distinction as its next state auditor," Bond said.

"I am confident that John Ashcroft's well-rounded professional background makes him the kind of leader Missouri needs in the executive branch of state government.

"During the last two years, this office has been staffed by persons with educational and business backgrounds to make this office one of the finest state auditing operations in the nation," Bond added. "John will continue to work we have begun in the auditor's office to bring professional, high quality auditing to the state of Missouri."

Ashcroft, at 30, is three years younger than the new governor. His age is the constitutional minimum.

There had been speculation on whether Bond or outgoing Gov. Warren E. Hearnes had the authority to name the new auditor. Hearnes had no comment Tuesday on his position.

"The law is specific that there is no auditor vacancy until I take office," Bond said. "I don't see any problem."

Others mentioned for the auditor's job included Greene County Prosecutor Dee Wampler and Springfield insurance executive Jerry Lumpe.

It was the third major appointment by the new governor.

Bank appeal dropped

JEFFERSON CITY — The Missouri State Banking Board here has dismissed the appeal filed by the Bank of New Madrid to the order of the Commissioner of Finance which denied the bank to construct and operate a facility at Marston.

The appeal was filed Nov. 16 after the Commissioner of Finance, H. Duane Pemberton, had granted authority to the Farmers Bank of Portageville to construct and operate a facility at Marston. The order denied authority to the Bank of New Madrid.

The banking board concluded that by law they did not have the authority to determine by appeal the subject matter of the appeal.

The appeal was dismissed on Dec. 8 for lack of jurisdiction.

Unemployment totals listed

JEFFERSON CITY — Mississippi County received $30,348 in unemployment benefits in November compared to $18,821 last November. New Madrid County got $16,351 in benefit payments in comparison with $16,156 last year.

In November Scott County received $28,675, compared to last November's $27,964. Stoddard County received $33,527 in benefits compared to $22,873 last November.

Firemen called

Firemen were called at 10:40 p.m. to the Roger Miller home, 315 Pam St., when fire broke out around the floor furnace and under the house.

Firemen said the furnace was apparently faulty. They listed damage as minor.

Sikeston recovery officers

New officers elected to head Sikeston Recovery Inc., from left, are Stafford Thompson, treasurer; Don Fulton, chairman; and City Manager Jim Huff, secretary. Sikeston Recovery Inc. is an organization which helps lower- income families build new homes.

Santa and the ICE KING

by Lucrece Beale

(For AMs, Dec. 12; PMs, Dec. 14)

SYNOPSIS: After a long journey across the ice sea, Oonik has finally reached Santa Land. Much to his dismay, he finds Santa suffering from the Ice King's wrath as much as the Eskimos of his own village.

CHAPTER SIX
A TALK WITH SANTA

Oonik ran down to the barn. The door was blocked by snow. He knew someone was inside because he could hear voices and every now and then the tap of a reindeer's hoof.

Oonik went around to the side of the barn. There he found a ladder leading up to an enormous window high above. He had never seen a ladder before. He climbed it fearfully. When he was near the top he looked down and when he saw Keotuk way below he grew so dizzy he almost fell. Shutting his eyes, he went up the rest of the ladder and climbed in the window.

He found himself at the top of a vast pile of hay. At the bottom of the pile was Santa Claus. He knew it was Santa because he was fat and round and wore a red suit and had silvery whiskers. But he didn't look gay and merry the way Oonik had always pictured him. He looked sad and worried.

He was talking to a crooked-legged dwarf with large, flappy ears and the two of them were gazing unhappily at eight skinny reindeer.

"It's no use, Tweedleknees," Santa said. "I'm going to let them go. I can't keep them here to starve."

"If only they'd eat meat," grumbled the crooked-legged dwarf. "Or cookies. Or vegetables. Or something."

"They want moss," murmured Santa Claus. "They can't understand why summer has not come. I'll turn them loose. They can go somewhere where there's bound to be summer in August as it should be."

"But what will you do when Christmas comes?" exclaimed Tweedleknees. "With no reindeer how will you make your rounds?"

"I don't know," Santa shook his head. "Perhaps there won't be Christmas any more. Who knows? Anyway, I'm turning them loose."

"We'll never get the door open, protested Tweedleknees. "It's blocked by snow."

"They can fly out the window," replied Santa. "That is if they still have the strength to fly."

"Come now," he said gently, patting the reindeer. "Fly away and find some summer feeding ground."

The reindeer looked around uncertainly and then, tapping their hooves three times on the floor, they flew gracefully upwards straight to the window where Oonik sat.

"Wait, wait!" cried Oonik rising to his feet. "Don't let them go!"

But it was too late. The reindeer brushed past him, one by one, into the sky.

Then Santa called out, "Who on earth are you?"

Oonik slid to the bottom of the pile of hay. He landed with a plop at Santa's feet. "I'm Oonik the Eskimo boy," he said. "And I came to you because my people are being destroyed by the Ice King's anger."

"Ah," said Santa, "so are we, my boy. And it is the same everywhere. Only yesterday I had a letter from a child who said that though it was August she had not yet had a chance to use the bathing suit I brought her last Christmas. Another child wrote that he was still using the ice skates I brought to him. So you see, the whole world is cold."

"But you must stop the Ice King!" cried Oonik.

"I?" said Santa.

"Of course! You are the most powerful, the bravest, the wisest one on earth. You are the only one who can stop the Ice King."

Santa pulled his pipe from his pocket and slowly filled it. "Tell me," he said. "How shall I stop the Ice King?"

"Why," said Oonik simply, "by going to him and telling him to stop."

Now the crooked-legged Tweedleknees growled, "What nonsense! If Santa went to see the Ice King who knows what might happen to him!"

"I'll go, too," protested Oonik. "I—I could help!"

"You!" snorted Tweedleknees.

"Hush, Tweedleknees," said Santa. Then he looked for a long time into Oonik's eyes. At last he said, "Very good, son. We will go."

Santa and the ICE KING

by Lucrece Beale

(For AMs, Dec. 12; PMs, Dec. 13)

SYNOPSIS: After a long journey across the ice sea, Oonik has finally reached Santa Land. Much to his dismay, he finds Santa suffering from the Ice King's wrath as much as the Eskimos of his own village.

CHAPTER SIX

A TALK WITH SANTA

Oonik ran down to the barn. The door was blocked by snow. He knew someone was inside because he could hear voices and every now and then the tap of a reindeer's hoof.

Oonik went around to the side of the barn. There he found a ladder leading up to an enormous window high above. He had never seen a ladder before. He climbed it fearfully. When he was near the top he looked down and when he saw Keotuk way below he grew so dizzy he almost fell. Shutting his eyes, he went up the rest of the ladder and climbed in the window.

He found himself at the top of a vast pile of hay. At the bottom of the pile was Santa Claus. He knew it was Santa because he was fat and round and wore a red suit and had silvery whiskers. But he didn't look gay and merry the way Oonik had always pictured him. He looked sad and worried.

He was talking to a crooked-legged dwarf with large, flappy ears and the two of them were gazing unhappily at eight skinny reindeer.

"It's no use, Tweedleknees," Santa said. "I'm going to let them go. I can't keep them here to starve."

"If only they'd eat meat," grumbled the crooked-legged dwarf. "Or cookies. Or vegetables. Or something."

"They want moss," murmured Santa Claus. "They can't understand why summer has not come. I'll turn them loose. They can go somewhere where there's bound to be summer in August as it should be."

"But what will you do when Christmas comes?" exclaimed Tweedleknees. "With no reindeer how will you make your rounds?"

"I don't know," Santa shook his head. "Perhaps there won't be Christmas any more. Who knows? Anyway, I'm turning them loose."

"We'll never get the door open, protested Tweedleknees. "It's blocked by snow."

"They can fly out the window," replied Santa. "That is if they still have the strength to fly."

"Come now," he said gently, patting the reindeer. "Fly away and find some summer feeding ground."

The reindeer looked around uncertainly and then, tapping their hooves three times on the floor, they flew gracefully upwards straight to the window where Oonik sat.

"Wait, wait!" cried Oonik rising to his feet. "Don't let them go!"

But it was too late. The reindeer brushed past him, one by one, into the sky.

Then Santa called out, "Who on earth are you?"

Oonik slid to the bottom of the pile of hay. He landed with a plop at Santa's feet. "I'm Oonik the Eskimo boy," he said. "And I came to you because my people are being destroyed by the Ice King's anger."

"Ah," said Santa, "so are we, my boy. And it is the same everywhere. Only yesterday I had a letter from a child who said that though it was August she had not yet had a chance to use the bathing suit I brought her last Christmas. Another child wrote that he was still using the ice skates I brought to him. So you see, the whole world is cold."

"But you must stop the Ice King!" cried Oonik.

"I?" said Santa.

"Of course! You are the most powerful, the bravest, the wisest one on earth. You are the only one who can stop the Ice King."

Santa pulled his pipe from his pocket and slowly filled it. "Tell me," he said. "How shall I stop the Ice King?"

"Why," said Oonik simply, "by going to him and telling him to stop."

Now the crooked-legged Tweedleknees growled, "What nonsense! If Santa went to see the Ice King who knows what might happen to him!"

"I'll go, too, protested Oonik "I—I could help!"

"You!" snorted Tweedleknees.

"Hush, Tweedleknees," said Santa. Then he looked for a long time into Oonik's eyes. At last he said, "Very good, son. We will go."

Crews work to restore city power

ST. LOUIS (AP)— Union Electric Co., crews worked into the early morning hours in the St. Louis area today in an effort to restore electric service to more than 15,000 customers who were without power following a severe ice storm that caused power lines to snap.

During a 24- hour period which ended late Tuesday, more than 100,000 customers were without electric service, a company spokesman said.

UE said 650 men had been added to normal emergency crews to fight the effects of the storm, but that repair operations were being hampered by slick streets. More than 1,500 tons of salt were poured on the city streets late Monday and Tuesday during the height of the ice storm, Paul Spelbring, street director, said.

Most businesses halted operations and other major firms reported absentee rates from ten to 30 per cent.

Relieve fatigue from physical exertion with added rest and sleep. If you experience fatigue from a sedentary occupation and way of life, get some exercise. MU launches health information program

COLUMBIA — How many Missouri citizens are aware of health care services available to them?

Are there Missourians and organizations, such as city and county governments, who know what health services they need but don't know how to get them?

Are there ways to prevent minor illnesses from becoming serious medical problems?

These are some of the questions three University of Missouri health information specialists are asking in a new educational program called CHIP (Consumer Health Information Program) funded earlier this year by a $196,000 grant from the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

The university was one of four institutions selected to develop the program from among 40 applicants across the nation. In Missouri, a pilot program has been set up in three of the 20 University extension areas -- KC Metro, Show-Me and Meramec.

The University has trained and assigned the specialists to program units in Kansas City (Model Cities Program), Warrensburg and Salem.

"We chose these three locations because one is urban, one is semi- rural, and one is rural," explained Dr. Arthur Rikli, program director who also is coordinator of the Missouri Regional Medical Program and University of Missouri- Columbia professor of community health and medical practice.

"We hope to demonstrate that the university extension division, with its proven capability to develop and transmit innovative information to the people, can be used to transmit reliable and accurate health information," Dr. Rikli said.

"As a result of rapidly growing health care demands on an already over- burdened health care system, Missouri must develop a more activated consumer. If a consumer has more complete health information, he will be less dependent upon the health care system," he added.

He said the three specialists who went through a special training program at UMC are attempting to identify health needs within a specific geographic area and evaluating benefits now offered. "From this information we plan to provide a systematic consumer information program for the three pilot areas," Dr. Rikli said.

Health information specialists receive academic support from the University of Missouri's Columbia and Kansas City campuses.

Dr. Rikli believes that faculty working with these treained specialists can help identify areas of major health concern, prepare health information material, provide consultation and general academic support.

"Ultimately," he said, "CHIP may result in the development of a continuous statewide program that provides consumer health information aides for urban neighborhoods and rural communities."

The idea is being tested in Kansas City. Charlotte Tillman, the health information specialist assigned to the Model Cities office, recruited and helped train five paraprofessionals to assist her in conducting interviews in inner- city homes and among neighborhood groups.

She is working closely there with the Model Cities Comprehensive Neighborhood Health Center and the Wayne Miner Neighborhood Health Center.

"We've already discovered people who live two blocks away from services available to them, but they don't know about them," said Miss Tillman, a former nurse.

The Show-Me area specialist in Warrensburg, Bonnie Garrett, who has degrees in physical therapy and community health education, has a different view of her job because of the location.

She is compiling a directory of health personnel, organizations and other data in Lafayette, Johnson, Henry and Pettis counties. "My goal is to help (these counties) better utilize the resources that do exist and hopefully help develop some that don't exist," Miss Garrett said.

Jim Bryan is doing similar work in Dent, Iron and Reynold counties of the six-county Meramec extension area.

"I'm not paid to deliver people to doctors' offices," Bryan told a civic group recently in Salem. "My job is to help the community define and satisfy its health needs."

He has toured hospitals, county health centers and other facilities as well as talking with both health care providers and consumers.

MU offers 2-year Army ROTC plan

COLUMBIA — The Department of Military Science at University of Missouri-Columbia has announced that applications are being accepted for enrollment in the Army ROTC two- year program. The program is open to transfer students, currently enrolled college sophomores who have not had ROTC and seniors who plan to continue studies in graduate or law school.

Requirements for acceptance are certification of at least four semesters remaining toward graduation or completion of a degree, an acceptable GPA and successful completion of physical and mental examinations.

If accepted into the two-year program, the student will attend a six- week summer camp at Fort Knox, Ky., which takes the place of the first two years of the standard four- year program.

Persons interested should write the Professor of Military Science, University of Missouri-Columbia, visit the department in Room 202 of Crowder Hall or call 314 882-7721 for information. The UMC military science department can process applicatons for any of over 290 colleges and universities offering Army ROTC.

SeMo State semester to end next week

CAPE GIRARDEAU — Just about the time the Apollo 17 astronauts are returning to earth from the final scheduled moon- walk, students at Southeast Missouri State University will also be getting ready for something final -- their examinations.

The fall term at the university will come to a close with final examinations Monday through Thursday of next week (Dec. 18-21).

As students complete their exams, they will depart for home with no term papers to write and no book reports to prepare. This is one of the advantages of the early semester calendar which Southeast Missouri State switched to this academic year.

In the past there was a "lame duck" session following the Christmas break of about two weeks of classes and a week of final examinations. This was followed by another short break.

Students will begin returning to the campus in mid- January. Registration for the spring semester, for those who have not pre- enrolled, will be Jan. 15-16. Classes will begin on Jan. 17.

New bills would give aid to private schools

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Full state aid could be provided to parochial and other private schools on the same basis as public schools under four constitutional amendments proposed by Rep. Eric F. Fink, R-Ballwin.

Another measure prefiled Tuesday for the general legislative session beginning Jan. 3 would replace present county prosecutors with a fulltime district attorney in every judicial district in outstate Missouri.

Fink's resolutions would require that no state aid could be given to schools teaching religion primarily or to schools which have any kind of religious services.

By accepting local, state or federal aid, the private and parochial schools would come under supervision of the State Board of Education.

The District Attorney Bill was sponsored by Sens. Albert M. Spradling, D-Cape Girardeau, A. Clifford Jones, R-Brentwood, and Ike Skelton, D-Lexington.

Spradling said it had the approval of the Missouri Association of Prosecuting Attorneys.

The new district attorneys would serve four- year terms and would be paid $28,000 a year, the same as circuit judges. They would have to give full time to their jobs and could not engage in private lawpractice.

The cost was estimated at $602,000 for the first partial fiscal year and $1,204,000 a year thereafter.

Jones also introduced legislation he has sponsored before — a bill to give 18- year-olds the same rights and duties now applying to adults over 21.

That would include about 150 items, including the right to buy and consume alcoholic drinks, make contracts, marry and divorce without parental consent, sue and be sued, and others.

A similar bill has been introduced in the House.

Fink also sponsored a bill to provide lifetime hunting, fishing or combination hunting and fishing licenses to anyone who has lived in the state for six months and paid a fee of $150.

The Conservation Commission would have to invest the revenue from such licenses in U.S. securities or other securities under the same restrictions applying to the investments of state banks.

Fink also submitted a bill exempting buses carrying less than 13 passengers and weighing less than 9,000 pounds from being classed as commerical vehicles.

COOKING-UP with Donna Satterfield

The stockings are hung, the Christmas tree is up (with only two broken ornaments) and the marshmallow cream is bought. Looks like I'm well on the way to a successful Christmas. Honestly, I can hardly believe that we only have 11 days left till Santa comes.

As promised, I have goodies from the dessert files of a Cape Girardeau friend, Mrs. Kenneth Goodman. Geneva is one of the best. She's the kind of cook who can whip up a fantastic meal in minutes, and remain really cool about the whole thing.

Last Christmas I practically scarfed up all of her cranberry sauce gelatin mold. I TOLD you I love cranberries. She says not to use the usual amount of water for the gelatin, since part of the pineapple juice is used in the recipe.

The Mexican Tea Cakes are really tiny cookies that melt in your mouth, and the bon bons are for those sweet teeth. The other recipes are just as good.

A reader has asked for a recipe that ran in Judy Gazette's Cooking-Up a few months ago. Can someone give me the recipe for Traveling Fruit? Thanks a mil!

CRANBERRY SAUCE MOLD AND CHERRY GELATIN

1 box cherry gelatin
1/2 pint sour cream
1 can whole cranberry sauce
1 can crushed pineapple
1/2 cup chopped pecans

Mix above ingredients together using pineapple juice instead of part of the water. Pour one half of the mixture into a dish and chill until slightly thickened. When first half is solid, spread with sour cream. Pour remaining gelatin mixture over this. Chill until firm.

MEXICAN TEA CAKES (COOKIES)

1 cup butter
1/2 cup powdered sugar
1 teaspoon vanilla
1/2 cup chopped nuts
2 1/4 cups sifted all purpose flour
1/4 teaspoon salt

Cream sugar and butter. Add vanilla, sift flour and salt together and add to first mixture. Chill for a few hours. Then roll into one-inch balls and bake on a buttered cookie sheet at 400 degrees for 14-17 minutes. Roll in powdered sugar as soon as they're taken from oven. Cool and roll in powered sugar again.

COCONUT BON BONS

1 stick melted butter
2 boxes powdered sugar
1 can sweetened condensed milk
8 oz. coconut

Mix well. Form into small balls and chill for one hour. (Can add candied cherries in center of balls.)

Melt one cake of parafin in a double boiler and add two packages of chocolate chips. Dip balls in chocolate and place on wax paper.

ORANGE ROLL

1 package vanilla wafers, finely crushed
1 can sweetened condensed milk
2 cups coconut
1 cup chopped pecans
15 orange slices, finely cut

Mix together with hands. Roll in powdered sugar in shape of a log. Makes two medium- sized logs.

PINEAPPLE ICE BOX PIE

9 inch or 10 inch pie crust
2 cups sugar
1/2 cup cornstarch

Mix sugar and cornstarch well. Add two cups water. Cook mixture until thick and clear. Add a can of drained, crushed pineapple. Let cool; then put in pie shell and let set. Top with whipped cream and English walnuts.

BING CHERRY SALAD

1 can bing cherries, drained
1 large can pineapple, sliced and drained
2 1/2 cups miniature marshmallows
1/2 pound cream cheese - 8 oz., room temperature
1 package whipped topping

Beat whipped topping until firm. Drop cream cheese in and beat until foamy and light. Add 1/4 cup cherry juice to mixture. Add rest of ingredients and fold in. This recipe is better if it is made the day before.

This icing is one of Geneva's quick but good icing recipes.

ICING

1 box powdered sugar
1/2 cup shortening

Add water to moisten and beat.

Here comes cranberry coffee cake

FOR SNACKTIME — Served warm from the oven, Cranberry Coffee Cake is a delightful offering.

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

When we heard that the young home ec students in a foods lab class at St. Mary's Academy in Riverside, Rhode Island had won a prize for a Cranberry Coffee Cake we promptly tried their recipe. Served fresh from the oven it's a delight and here are directions for making it.

CRANBERRY COFFEE CAKE

1 cup chopped fresh or frozen cranberries
1 tablespoon granulated sugar
1 tablespoon dark brown sugar
1/4 teaspoon cinnamon
1/4 teaspoon nutmeg
1 package (3 ounces) cream cheese
1/4 cup butter or margarine
2 cups buttermilk biscuit mix
1/3 cup milk
1 large apple
Confectioners' Sugar Frosting, see below

In a small mixing bowl stir together the cranberries, sugars, cinnamon and nutmeg; set aside.

In a medium mixing bowl, with a pastry blender, cut cream cheese and butter into biscuit mix until coarse crumbs are formed. With a fork, gradually stir in the milk to form a soft dough.

Turn out on a well-floured pastry cloth and knead gently just until smooth. Roll into a 12 by 8 inch rectangle. Transfer to a large greased cookie sheet.

Peel and chop enough apple to make 1 cup; stir into cranberry mixture.

Starting at short side of dough, spoon cranberry mixture down center third of dough. With a kitchen scissors, cut 2 1/2-inch strips of dough at 1-inch intervals along both sides of rectangle. Fold strips at an angle across filling alternating from side to side.

Bake in a preheated 425-degree oven for 20 minutes. While coffee cake is still warm, brush or spread Confectioners' Sugar Frosting over top and sides. Best served warm from the oven.

Makes 6 to 8 servings.

CONFECTIONERS' SUGAR FROSTING

Stir together 1/2 cup confectioners' sugar, 1/2 teaspoon vanilla and enough milk (about 2 teaspoons) to make a frosting of spreading consistency.

MOLASSES FRUIT AND NUT BARS

1/3 cup shortening
1/4 cup sugar
1/4 teaspoon baking soda
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon cinnamon
2/3 cup unsulphured molasses
1 egg
1 1/4 cups sifted all-purpose flour
1 cup finely cut dates
1/2 cup chopped nuts

Cream together shortening, sugar, soda, salt and cinnamon. Beat in molasses, then egg. Stir in flour, dates and nuts. Spread in a greased and lightly floured 9 by 9 by 2-inch baking pan. Bake in 375 degree oven 25 minutes. Cool. Turn out on cutting board. Spread with Glaze.* To cut into bars, make six cuts one way and across with five cuts. Yield: 42 bars.

*GLAZE

3/4 cup sifted confectioners' sugar
4 teaspoons water
1 tablespoon grated orange rind

Blend together all ingredients.

Coffee Corner by Cherie

Ho - ho - ho - it's that season of the year again and my poor head is all in a whirl, but I'm terribly afraid it's not because it's full of visions of sugarplums dancing through it. No! It's in a whirl because there are visions dancing through it alright, but they're visions of Christmas gifts not yet bought, Christmas candy not yet made, Christmas gifts bought but not yet wrapped, and too numerous to mention other little trifles that are all crowding in on my poor sick and heavy laden brain. Plus, this weather is driving me up a wall and the children being home so much this month with flu, and other viruses is really enough to make me feel that the Christmas Spirit is something I'll never be able to capture this year. Oh, for the days when I was the child and my mother was the one who went racing around for a solid month getting everything prepared for one hectic day when you cram your tummy full of turkey and sweet pudding, and your wastebaskets full of all that expensive wrapping paper it took you so long to fold around those gifts that nobody but the kids really wanted anyway. Somehow, when mama was Santa Claus things were sure a lot more fun. I know Charles keeps asking me what I want for Christmas, and frankly, I don't know — I mean I really haven't had the time to sit down and look through the catalogs that have mama presents in them and my brain is so fuddled I can't come up with one blasted thing to want that our budget can afford (somehow trying to think of something within one's budget always takes the thrill out of looking anyway - wonder what he'd do if I ask for a full length mink coat). Oh well, if I had a coat like that I'd probably start having hot flashes and wouldn't be able to wear it anyway — wonder how he'd feel about a one way bus ticket to Farmington?

Washington Report

By Senator Symington

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Recently I had the privilege to serve on the United States delegation to the North Atlantic Assembly session in Bonn, Germany, and then to accompany a group of Senators on a visit to Yugoslavia, Bulgaria, Romania, and Czechoslovakia.

Upon our return, I submitted a summarized report to the Chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee based upon briefings by American officials and our conversations with various foreign officials. In Eastern Europe, we were able to meet and talk with the heads of State of each of the four countries we visited.

Several additional significant matters which were brought to my attention during the trip will be included in a classified report to be submitted at a later date.

United States officials knowledgeable in the area informed us that 1973 would probably be the year in which the United States would again focus attention primarily on Europe. The year would witness new multinational trade negotiations, monetary arrangements, bilateral economic agreements, a continuation of the SALT talks, and discussions incident to balanced force reductions.

It would appear that every American will be affected in some way by later developments incident to the European Common Market. The United States, we were informed, will be counting on the Germans and also on the British to move the processes of European integration in the right direction.

In terms of economic policy it is expected that the influence of West Germany will be of particular importance and will be exerted toward preventing the growth of protectionist attitudes, both in Europe and in the United States.

Set forth below are some of my conclusions based upon my conversations with American officials and those of the countries we visited. copies of my full report will be available upon request after declassification by the State Department.

1. There is no question that President Nixon's visit to Moscow and other Eastern European countries and visits by other high- ranking officials have brought about a relaxation of tensions and an improvement in East- West relations, a "thaw" which can lead to dramatic changes in our relationships with all East European countries.

2. In order to open the door for further improvement in our relations with the Soviet Union and the countries of Eastern Europe, careful consideration should be given to the extension of Most Favored Nation tariff treatment so these economically deficit nations can begin trading with the United States.

3. Representatives of all the nations visited evidenced concern over the Vietnam war and the situation in the Middle East and expressed the hope that satisfactory settlements would be reached in both cases.

4. There was great interest in the Common Market and many were seriously concerned about the fact that it gives a "fair advantage" to the countries involved. In this connection, we were informed that it was an absolute necessity for Spain to be able to join the Common Market.

5. Much discussion was devoted to the Conference on Security and Cooperation in Europe. While there was disagreement on what such a conference could achieve, there was the feeling that the small countries should participate. In addition, all are concerned about the dangers of another war and stressed the importance of peaceful co-existence.

6. All agree that trade and cultural, scientific and technical exchanges are helpful and could serve as a first step in bringing about an improvement in relations between the United States and Eastern Europe.

7. The nations visited were also interested in obtaining grants and loans from the United States.

New executive joins Seminole scout district

KENNETT — A Dunklin County native has been employed by the Southeast Missouri Council, Boy Scouts of America, as the new district scout executive of the Seminole District.

Cape voters pass school bond issue

CAPE GIRARDEAU — A spirit of elation filled the Cape Girardeau school board office after 2,274 voters who went to the polls Tuesday at six local grade schools passed an almost $1 - million bond issue by a four- to - one margin.

A similar proposal had been sent to the voters last spring when board members were elected, but it failed at that time. By letting the issue stand on its own merit in the Tuesday election, school officials hoped the measure would be accepted by the voters. It was promised there would be no tax increase.

A total of 1,820 votes were cast in favor of the $995,000 bond issue to complete remodeling and expansion programs at several schools. There were 451 votes against the measure. Only 2,274 went to the polls although 19,000 voters were eligible to ballot.

Rainy and foggy weather is thought to have kept some voters from the polls. Approximately 5,000 voters cast their ballots at the April election when new school board members were elected and the city general election was held.

A two-thirds majority was needed. In the April election a majority was reached, but not a two-thirds majority.

School board officials said they plan to begin construction and remodeling next summer.

Washington Report

By Senator Symington

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Recently I had the privilege to serve on the United States delegation to the North Atlantic Assembly session in Bonn, Germany, and then to accompany a group of Senators on a visit to Yugoslavia, Bulgaria, Romania, and Czechoslovakia.

Upon our return, I submitted a summarized report to the Chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee based upon briefings by American officials and our conversations with various foreign officials. In Eastern Europe, we were able to meet and talk with the heads of State of each of the four countries we visited.

Several additional significant matters which were brought to my attention during the trip will be included in a classified report to be submitted at a later date.

United States officials knowledgeable in the area informed us that 1973 would probably be the year in which the United States would again focus attention primarily on Europe. The year would witness new multinational trade negotiations, monetary arrangements, bilateral economic agreements, a continuation of the SALT talks, and discussions incident to balanced force reductions.

It would appear that every American will be affected in some way by later developments incident to the European Common Market. The United States, we were informed, will be counting on the Germans and also on the British to move the processes of European integration in the right direction.

In terms of economic policy it is expected that the influence of West Germany will be of particular importance and will be exerted toward preventing the growth of protectionist attitudes, both in Europe and in the United States.

Set forth below are some of my conclusions based upon my conversations with American officials and those of the countries we visited. copies of my full report will be available upon request after declassification by the State Department.

1. There is no question that President Nixon's visit to Moscow and other Eastern European countries and visits by other high- ranking officials have brought about a relaxation of tensions and an improvement in East- West relations, a "thaw" which can lead to dramatic changes in our relationships with all East European countries.

2. In order to open the door for further improvement in our relations with the Soviet Union and the countries of Eastern Europe, careful consideration should be given to the extension of Most Favored Nation tariff treatment so these economically deficit nations can begin trading with the United States.

3. Representatives of all the nations visited evidenced concern over the Vietnam war and the situation in the Middle East and expressed the hope that satisfactory settlements would be reached in both cases.

4. There was great interest in the Common Market and many were seriously concerned about the fact that it gives a "fair advantage" to the countries involved. In this connection, we were informed that it was an absolute necessity for Spain to be able to join the Common Market.

5. Much discussion was devoted to the Conference on Security and Cooperation in Europe. While there was disagreement on what such a conference could achieve, there was the feeling that the small countries should participate. In addition, all are concerned about the dangers of another war and stressed the importance of peaceful co-existence.

6. All agree that trade and cultural, scientific and technical exchanges are helpful and could serve as a first step in bringing about an improvement in relations between the United States and Eastern Europe.

7. The nations visited were also interested in obtaining grants and loans from the United States.

New executive joins Seminole scout district

KENNETT — A Dunklin County native has been employed by the Southeast Missouri Council, Boy Scouts of America, as the new district scout executive of the Seminole District.

James B. Williams, 23-year-old son of Dr. Charles S. Williams, Malden, has assumed the position which covers Pemiscot and Dunklin counties and Portageville and Marston in New Madrid County.

Williams, a graduate of Malden High School, will live in Caruthersville. He is engaged to Miss Joyce Suellentrop who will join him following a June wedding.

Williams has been active in scouting since 1960, when he became a Cub Scout. He is an Eagle Scout and attended the 1969 National Jamboree at Farragut State Park in Idaho. He was at Philmont Scout Ranch in New Mexico with the council contingent in 1967.

He graduated from Southeast Missouri State University in January 1972 and went to work as a national representative for Alpha Phi Omega, the national service fraternity associated with the scouting program on college campuses.

He assumed his duties as executive director Dec. 1.

National Guard offers expanded opportunities

JEFFERSON CITY — The Missouri National Guard is assuming a large role in the United States Army due to the reduction in size of the regular Army. Because of this, the guard is offering to new members better opportunities than ever before.

These include pay, training in a military skill that can be used in civilian occupations, community service possibilities, re- enlistment of prior service men without loss of rank, and the option of an enlistment in the guard instead of the regular Army.

The pay of the military has been greatly increased in recent years and the guard has shared in this. A National Guard recruit receives $38.40 for the weekend training held once a month. Of course, once a man has received his training he is entitled to promotion and a pay increase. The two weeks of annual training is also compensated for at the regular rate of pay.

More important than the pay to a person who wishes to improve himself, is the training each member of the guard receives after his enlistment. There is training in the ways of the military but there is also training in a military occupation specialty. These MOS's may surprise you.

Company C, 1140th Engineer Battalion, located at Sikeston and Portageville, has such specialties as heavy equipment operators, clerks, cooks, truck drivers, construction specialists and communications.

The National Guard serves the community in many ways. Many of the training projects of the unit may be community betterment projects. In times of emergency the guard can be mobilized to help the civilian population. This can range from flood relief to civil disturbance; the guard reacts, 24 hours a day, seven days a week.

Prior service men may enlist in the guard for one year under its "Try One" program. These men may enter the guard at the rank they left the service. Having already been trained they are a benefit to the unit as well as benefiting themselves. Any time served in the guard wil accumulate retirement benefits, too.

The Missouri National Guard is open to all qualified men, including those who have just received their induction notice for the regular Army. The guard has many opportunities for a person to improve himself as well as serving his country in a meaningufl way. For further informationa concerning the opportunities awaiting you in the National Guard, contact SFC Byron W. Caldwell or Sgt. Robert H. Lasters at the National Guard Armory in Sikeston, or phone 471-1558.

Pilot survives 32 day ordeal in Far North

YELLOWKNIFE, N.W.T. (AP)—Officials believe a 14year-old Eskimo boy who couldn't hold out saved a pilot's life after their plane crashed in the Canadian Northwest and rescuers did not find them for 32 days.

The pilot, Martin Hartwell, 45, was rescued from the wilderness Saturday. But the boy, David Kootook, died on the 23rd day of their ordeal, perhaps from despair or more likely from chronic appendicitis.

Hartwell was reported in excellent condition today at a Yellowknife hospital with two broken ankles and a fractured knee. He only suffered mild frostbite despite temperatures that sometimes were 30 degrees below zero at the crash site 60 miles south of Great Bear Lake.

The plane went down Nov. 8 while on a medical flight from the remote arctic settlement of Spence Bay to Yellowknife. Also killed were a pregnant Eskimo and a 27-year-old nurse escorting the woman and young Kootook. The nurse died in the crash and the other woman a few hours later.

Hartwell would not speak with reporters after the rescue. But Cpl. Harvie Copeland a paramedic who was among the first to reach the pilot said, "I think maybe during the first couple of weeks the boy contributed a lot to him being here now."

Copeland and others who talked with Hartwell got these details about the pilot's survival:

Hartwell was unable to move after the crash because of his injuries. But he supervised the boy, who built a log frame over which canvas engine-covers were draped to make a tent.

The boy kept a fire going. They ate food that was on the plane and melted snow for drinking water. Kootook also went fishing on a nearby frozen lake.

After 18 days, the youth appeared to lose hope, his spirits dropped and he "appeared to give up." Three airplanes flew nearby during the week without seeing the wreckage. The youth died on the 23rd day.

Hartwell's firewood ran out and, for the last three days before the rescue, he did not have any hot food.

DES morning after pill could cause possible cancer epidemic

WASHINGTON (AP) — Fearful of a "possible second cancer epidemic" from the controversial drug DES, Ralph Nader is urging the Food and Drug Administration to crack down on its use as a morningafter birth-control pill.

The consumer advocate's Health Research Group issued an eight-page report Monday charging that university health clinics are handing out diethylstilbestrol—DES-without warning coeds that they and their possible offspring are being exposed to a risk of cancer.

"It is clear that widespread and totally uncontrolled use of DES as a morning-after pill is a serious problem with possibly heavy, although unknown, consequences for the public health," the report said. "The drug industry, the FDA and the doctors must act to prevent this abuse."

The deputy director of FDA's Bureau of Drugs, Dr. Marion Finkel, said the agency hopes to resolve the problem within a few weeks.

The FDA's National Drug Advisory Committee has concluded tentatively that DES effectively prevents pregnancy within 72 hours after intercourse, she said.

"What we don't know is certain safety problems and the degree of efficacy," she added.

Drug companies, she said, have not responded to FDA appeals for further research so "I think we're going to have to come to a decision without the help of manufacturers."

DES, a synthetic hormone, has been linked to vaginal cancer in about 100 women whose mothers took it during the 1940s and 1950s to avoid miscarriage. It since has been judged ineffective for that use, and now is prescribed most often for post-menopausal complications.

The Nader group said the unapproved use of DES as a post-coital contraceptive "has apparently been going on uncurbed for a number of years."

The report mentioned specifically the University of Michigan, which has treated more than 1,000 young women with DES, and the University of Pennsylvania, which has FDA approval for investigating its use in treating rape victims.

Hijacker guilty in St. Louis

ST. LOUIS (AP)— A U.S. District County jury of ten women and two men convicted Martin J. McNally of Wyandotte, Mich., on two counts of air piracy here Tuesday evening in connection with the hijacking of two American Airlines jets at Lambert— St. Louis International Airport June 23.

McNally, 28, showed no emotion when the verdict was announced, thanked Judge John K. Regan who heard the case and raised two fingers in a Churchillian victory sign as U.S. marshals led him from the courtroom. He was to be taken today to Springfiled, Mo., where he would be evaluated by federal correctional officials.

Judge Regan said he would issue a sentence in 90 days. The penalty for air piracy is 20 years to life in prison.

Frederick H. Mayer, the convicted hijacker's court-appointed defense attorney said he would file an appeal today on the grounds that a pre- trial motion for a change of venue was denied and prosecution evidence submitted was "illegally seized at McNally's home" on June 28 when he was arrested.

McNally was accused of demanding $502,500 in ransom when he hijacked a New York to Tulsa, Okla., flight after it left St. Louis June 23. The hijacker, who was armed with a .45- caliber machine gun, was given the money and two parachutes when the plane again landed here.

The hijacker and crew members were set to takeoff again when a car smashed into the wheels of the aircraft on the runway disabling the ship. A second jet was commandeered and was ordered flown to Toronto by the hijacker.

The driver of the car, David J. Hanley of Florissant was charged by the government with willfully damaging and wrecking a civil aircraft and is awaiting trial on the charges.

The hijacker parachuted from the plane over northern Indiana early June 24. Most of the ransom money was recovered in a farm field near Peru, Ind., along with a coat and gun the hijacker used.

IRS finds few rent watch violations

ST. LOUIS — Internal Revenue Service investigators are finding few rent increases in Missouri consequent to higher Social Security and Railroad Retirement payments made during the first month of Rent Watch.

The Cost of Living Council (CLC) ordered the nationwide Rent Watch on September 29 to prevent landlords from illegally raising rents to take advangage of an October increase in Social Security and Railroad Retirement payments to the elderly, the handicapped, children and widows.

"Of Missouri's 781,698 Social Security recipients, only 51 filed complaints with IRS. In addition to investigating these complaints, IRS initiated other investigations covering 1,068 rental units," William H. Tompkins continued.

"Of the total number of rent watch investigations in Missouri, IRS found no violations in 26 cases. In seven (7) cases, we found minor violations and the landlords voluntarily complied when first contacted by an IRS investigator," Mr. Tompkins said.

The high degree of compliance in Missouri is typical of that found by IRS throughout the United States.

IRS initiated national investigations of 89,664 rental units during the first month and a half of Rent Watch. Only 20 violations of a minor nature and two major violations were uncovered as a result.

In addition, IRS received approximately 10,800 inquiries and relatively few (about 2,000) complaints from all parts of the country. The Service completed investigations of 1,223 of these complaints, uncovering 292 violations. Most of the violations, of a minor technical nature (e.g., improper notifications), were corrected immediately. IRS assessed six landlords with penalties totaling $21,391.

All residential rental units under economic controls are covered by Rent Watch. The program excludes landlords with a direct or indirect interest in four or less units, and all housing controlled by federal, state and local governments.

Landlords cannot raise rents above 2.5 per cent per year plus any additional charges passed on to the tenant for increased taxes, municipal fees, services and capital improvements. Federal regulations also require landlords to notify tenants 30 days in advance of a rent hike.

IRS offices continue to give priority to investigating complaints from Social Security and Railroad Retirement recipients.

Dandy Don flies high for TV ads

NEW YORK (AP) — Dandy Don Meredith first learned to fly when he was the Dallas Cowboys' quarterback. Linebackers gave him the lessons when the Cowboys' blocking fell apart.

Now he's learning to fly again, but this time in a light plane. It's all part of a series of television commercials he's doing in a national learn-to-fly campaign sponsored by Cessna Aircraft Co.

The lessons began this week in Grand Prairie, Tex., after he wrapped up his chores with Frank Gifford and Howard Cosell on the ABC television network's Monday night pro football show.

Meredith says flying is something he always wanted to do. Is he looking forward to it with white knuckles?

"Well, kind of, I guess," he said in an interview before Monday night's game between Oakland and the New York Jets.

"But I'm not really afraid or apprehensive about it. I'm anxious to get it done. The only reservation I have is that we're working on a tight time schedule.

"I'd really like to enjoy flying and I think I will. But to complete the commercials on schedule we'll have to get them done by the end of the year. So I'll really have to get on the stick when I get back home and fly every day."

The commercials are scheduled to start appearing April 1 on all three television networks for at least 13 weeks. In them, Dandy Don will be shown progressing from fledgling birdman to solo performer at a Cessna pilot center.

Irv Lanning of Gardner Advertising Agency, St. Louis, Mo., is putting together the commercials, which also will appear in newspaper and magazine ads.

He says Meredith was chosen as Cessna's flying spokesman "because he looked like our kind of guy. We wanted somebody who was personable and likeable, which he certainly is."

When will he get his private pilot's license?

"I really just don't know right now," he said. "Probably early next year."

Has he been cleared for takeoff by Howard Cosell?

"I'm going to take him up on my first solo flight," Dandy drawled.

National Guard offers expanded opportunities

JEFFERSON CITY — The Missouri National Guard is assuming a large role in the United States Army due to the reduction in size of the regular Army. Because of this, the guard is offering to new members better opportunities than ever before.

These include pay, training in a military skill that can be used in civilian occupations, the community service possibilities, re- enlistment of prior service men without loss of rank, and the option of an enlistment in the guard instead of the regular Army.

The pay of the military has been greatly increased in recent years and the guard has shared in this. A National Guard recruit receives $38.40 for the weekend training held once a month. Of course, once a man has received his training he is entitled to promotion and a pay increase. The two weeks of annual training is also compensated for at the regular rate of pay.

More important than the pay to a person who wishes to improve himself, is the training each member of the guard receives after his enlistment. There is training in the ways of the military but there is also training in a military occupation specialty. These MOS's may surprise you.

Company C, 1140th Engineer Battalion, located at Sikeston and Portageville, has such specialties as heavy equipment operators, clerks, cooks, truck drivers, construction specialists and communications.

The National Guard serves the community in many ways. Many of the training projects of the unit may be community betterment projects. In times of emergency the guard can be mobilized to help the civilian population. This can range from flood relief to civil disturbance; the guard reacts, 24 hours a day, seven days a week.

Prior service men may enlist in the guard for one year under its "Try One" program. These men may enter the guard at the rank they left the service. Having already been trained they are a benefit to the unit as well as benefiting themselves. Any time served in the guard wil accumulate retirement benefits, too.

The Missouri National Guard is open to all qualified men, including those who have just received their induction notice for the regular Army. The guard has many opportunities for a person to improve himself as well as serving his country in a meaningufl way. For further informations concerning the opportunities awaiting you in the National Guard, contact SFC Byron W. Caldwell or Sgt. Robert H. Lasters at the National Guard Armory in Sikeston, or phone 471-1558.

Pilot survives 32 day ordeal in Far North

YELLOWKNIFE, N.W.T. (AP)—Officials believe a 14year-old Eskimo boy who couldn't hold out saved a pilot's life after their plane crashed in the Canadian Northwest and rescuers did not find them for 32 days.

The pilot, Martin Hartwell, 45, was rescued from the wilderness Saturday. But the boy, David Kootook, died on the 23rd day of their ordeal, perhaps from despair or more likely from chronic appendicitis.

Hartwell was reported in excellent condition today at a Yellowknife hospital with two broken ankles and a fractured knee. He only suffered mild frostbite despite temperatures that sometimes were 20 degrees below zero at the crash site 60 miles south of Great Bear Lake.

The plane went down Nov. 8 while on a medical flight from the remote arctic settlement of Spence Bay to Yellowknife. Also killed were a pregnant Eskimo and a 21-year-old nurse escorting the woman and young Kootook. The nurse died in the crash and the other woman a few hours later.

Hartwell would not speak with reporters after the rescue. But Cpl. Harvie Copeland a paramedic who was among the first to reach the pilot said, "I think maybe during the first couple of weeks the boy contributed a lot to him being here now."

Copeland and others who talked with Hartwell got these details about the pilot's survival:

Hartwell was unable to move after the crash because of his injuries. But he supervised the boy, who built a log frame over which canvas engine-covers were draped to make a tent.

The boy kept a fire going. They ate food that was on the plane and melted snow for drinking water. Kootook also went fishing on a nearby frozen lake.

After 18 days, the youth appeared to lose hope, his spirits dropped and he "appeared to give up." Three airplanes flew nearby during the week without seeing the wreckage. The youth died on the 23rd day.

Hartwell's firewood ran out and, for the last three days before the rescue, he did not have any hot food.

DES morning after pill could cause possible cancer epidemic

WASHINGTON (AP) — Fearful of a "possible second cancer epidemic" from the controversial drug DES, Ralph Nader is urging the Food and Drug Administration to crack down on its use as a morningafter birth-control pill.

The consumer advocate's Health Research Group issued an eight-page report Monday charging that university health clinics are handing out diethylstilbestrol—DES-without warning coeds that they and their possible offspring are being exposed to a risk of cancer.

"It is clear that widespread and totally uncontrolled use of DES as a morning-after pill is a serious problem with possibly heavy, although unknown, consequences for the public health," the report said. "The drug industry, the FDA and the doctors must act to prevent this abuse."

The deputy director of FDA's Bureau of Drugs, Dr. Marion Finkel, said the agency hopes to resolve the problem within a few weeks.

The FDA's National Drug Advisory Committee has concluded tentatively that DES effectively prevents pregnancy within 72 hours after intercourse, she said.

"What we don't know is certain safety problems and the degree of efficacy," she added.

Drug companies, she said, have not responded to FDA appeals for further research so "I think we're going to have to come to a decision without the help of manufacturers."

DES, a synthetic hormone, has been linked to vaginal cancer in about 100 women whose mothers took it during the 1940s and 1950s to avoid miscarriage. It since has been judged ineffective for that use, and now is prescribed most often for post-menopausal complications.

The Nader group said the unapproved use of DES as a postcoital contraceptive "has apparently been going on uncurbed for a number of years."

The report mentioned specifically the University of Michigan, which has treated more than 1,000 young women with DES, and the University of Pennsylvania, which has FDA approval for investigating its use in treating rape victims.

Hijacker guilty in St. Louis

ST. LOUIS (AP)— A U.S. District Courty jury of ten women and two men convicted Martin J. McNally of Wyandotte, Mich., on two counts of air piracy here Tuesday evening in connection with the hijacking of two American Airlines jets at Lambert— St. Louis International Airport June 23.

McNally, 28, showed no emotion when the verdict was announced, thanked Judge John K. Regan who heard the case and raised two fingers in a Churchillian victory sign as U.S. marshals led him from the courtroom. He was to be taken today to Springfiled, Mo., where he would be evaluated by federal correctional officials.

Judge Regan said he would issue a sentence in 90 days. The penalty for air piracy is 20 years to life in prison.

Frederick H. Mayer, the convicted hijacker's court-appointed defense attorney said he would file an appeal today on the grounds that a pre- trial motion for a change of venue was denied and prosecution evidence submitted was "illegally seized at McNally's home" on June 28 when he was arrested.

McNally was accused of demanding $502,500 in ransom when he hijacked a New York to Tulsa, Okla., flight after it left St. Louis June 23. The hijacker, who was armed with a .45- caliber machine gun, was given the money and two parachutes when the plane again landed here.

The hijacker and crew members were set to takeoff again when a car crashed into the wheels of the aircraft on the runway disabling the ship. A second jet was commandeered and was ordered flown to Toronto by the hijacker.

The driver of the car, David J. Hanley of Florissant was charged by the government with willfully damaging and wrecking a civil aircraft and is awaiting trial on the charges.

The hijacker parachuted from the plane over northern Indiana early June 24. Most of the ransom money was recovered in a farm field near Peru, Ind., along with a coat and gun the hijacker used.

IRS finds few rent watch violations

ST. LOUIS — Internal Revenue Service investigators are finding few rent increases in Missouri consequent to higher Social Security and Railroad Retirement payments made during the first month of Rent Watch.

The Cost of Living Council (CLC) ordered the nationwide Rent Watch on September 29 to prevent landlords from illegally raising rents to take advangage of an October increase in Social Security and Railroad Retirement payments to the elderly, the handicapped, children and widows.

"Rent Watch is successful in Missouri because most landlords have complied voluntarily with federal rent regulations," said William H. Tompkins, IRS Acting District Director.

"Of Missouri's 781,698 Social Security recipients, only 51 filed complaints with IRS. In addition to investigating these complaints, IRS initiated other investigations covering 1,068 rental units," William H. Tompkins continued.

"Of the total number of rent watch investigations in Missouri, IRS found no violations in 26 cases. In seven (7) cases, we found minor violations and the landlords voluntarily complied when first contacted by an IRS investigator," Mr. Tompkins said.

The high degree of compliance in Missouri is typical of that found by IRS throughout the United States.

IRS initiated national investigations of 89,664 rental units during the first month and a half of Rent Watch. Only 20 violations of a minor nature and two major violations were uncovered as a result.

In addition, IRS received approximately 10,800 inquiries and relatively few (about 2,000) complaints from all parts of the country. The Service completed investigations of 1,222 of these complaints, uncovering 292 violations. Most of the violations, of a minor technical nature (e.g., improper notifications), were corrected immediately. IRS assessed six landlords with penalties totaling $21,391.

All residential rental units under economic controls are covered by Rent Watch. The program excludes landlords with a direct or indirect interest in four or less units, and all housing controlled by federal, state and local governments.

Landlords cannot raise rents above 2.5 per cent per year plus any additional charges passed on to the tenant for increased taxes, municipal fees, services and capital improvements. Federal regulations also require landlords to notify tenants 30 days in advance of a rent hike.

IRS offices continue to give priority to investigating complaints from Social Security and Railroad Retirement recipients.

Dandy Don flies high for TV ads

NEW YORK (AP) — Dandy Don Meredith first learned to fly when he was the Dallas Cowboys' quarterback. Linebackers gave him the lessons when the Cowboys' blocking fell apart.

Now he's learning to fly again, but this time in a light plane. It's all part of a series of television commercials he's doing in a national learn-to-fly campaign sponsored by Cessna Aircraft Co.

The lessons began this week in Grand Prairie, Tex., after he wrapped up his chores with Frank Gifford and Howard Cosell on the ABC television network's Monday night pro football show.

Meredith says flying is something he always wanted to do. Is he looking forward to it with white knuckles?

"Well, kind of, I guess," he said in an interview before Monday night's game between Oakland and the New York Jets.

"But I'm not really afraid or apprehensive about it. I'm anxious to get it done. The only reservation I have is that we're working on a tight time schedule.

"I'd really like to enjoy flying and I think I will. But to complete the commercials on schedule we'll have to get them done by the end of the year. So I'll really have to get on the stick when I get back home and fly every day."

The commercials are scheduled to start appearing April 1 on all three television networks for at least 13 weeks. In them, Dandy Don will be shown progressing from fledgling birdman to solo performer at a Cessna pilot center.

Irv Lanning of Gardner Advertising Agency, St. Louis, Mo., is putting together the commercials, which also will appear in newspaper and magazine ads.

He says Meredith was chosen as Cessna's flying spokesman "because he looked like our kind of guy. We wanted somebody who was personable and likeable, which he certainly is."

When will he get his private pilot's license?

Has he been cleared for takeoff by Howard Cosell?

"I'm going to take him up on my first solo flight," Dandy drawled.

THE LAY ANALYST
by Anne Richter
(Avon W326/$1.25
283 pp.)

Group therapy and it's cold and mercenary exploiters get a thorough going- over in this sizzling novel- expose' of the current therapeutic vogue. The exploiter is the bizarre Dr. Vane, whose equally bizarre views of love and sex attract a national following of men and women. The notorious Lay Analyst has no qualms about using any means to induce his patients to shed their inhibitions, and clothes, if necessary, in order to satisfy his erotic cravings. Using a technique that only he has mastered, Ralph Vane reduces his patients to their lowest animal level. His eager disciples eat it up. They include Elizabeth, the exquisite actress shattered by life; Robert, the homosexual, a weak man sustained by an inner sweetness; and Martin, a brilliant surgeon whose heart and soul are twisted by hate. Together with four other tormented souls who comprise Vane's unorthodix therapy group, they provide some of the wildest sessions ever recorded!

THE LAY ANALYST is Anne Richter's first novel. No stranger to the psychoanalytic world she describes so well, she has been active in psychoanalytic circles for years.

Leadership fight to overshadow Vietnam

CAPE GIRARDEAU— The most important task before the 93rd Congress when it convenes on Jan. 3 will be the selection of a House majority leader and committee chairmen, according to 10th District Congressman Bill Burlison.

Burlison said the task might even overshadow such issues as the Vietnam War, welfare reform, the economy and the farm program.

"I think how we will go about selecting the majority leader and the committee chairmen will go a long way toward determining not only the course of legislation in the next two years but how democratic the Congress can be," 10th District Rep. Bill D. Burlison said Friday.

The Cape Girardeau Democrat was somewhat critical of the autocratic seniority system that dominates the selection of congressional leaders. But he said in an interview that he has no firm proposal to change it. As he has done frequently in his two previous terms, he maintained a moderate stance.

"There is going to be a leadership fight among the Democrats," Burlison predicted. The main bout will be for the House majority leader's post presumably vacant as a result of the Oct. 16 plane crash in Alaska in which Rep. Hale Boggs of Louisiana disappeared. If the traditional seniority system is followed, Boggs' successor will be Rep. Thomas O'Neill of Massachusetts, the present majority whip.

Burlison would not say if he favors O'Neill. He said he would like to see top congressional positions filled on the basis of ability rather than seniority only.

Under the timeworn seniority system, lawmakers with the longest tenure, regardless of ability or personal concurrence with majority party views— in this case the Democratic party— are automatically confirmed or elevated to positions of power, including committee chairmanship. The majority leader chooses the majority whip and then, when vacancies occur, elevate the whip to the majority leadership and the majority leader to speaker of the House. What results is a Congress run by elderly and sometimes unrepresentative legislators.

"The question facing the Congress is not so much who will succeed Boggs," Burlison said. "The bigger question is whether the positions should be filled by the speaker and the majority leader or by election by members of the Congress. This is the only democratic way to do it."

Seniority, Burlison said, "has some validity but when you get down to leadership, perhaps the alternative should be to select the leadership on the basis of ability.

"However, who would judge who has the best ability? If the 435 members of the Congress were to elect colleagues to these powerful positions, politics would play an even more important part in the selection and they probably could not agree. There would be constant scheming.

"If someone would come up with a way to decide who would be the most able, then I would be for it. I am not wedded to the seniority system, but I am not in favor of a dictatorship as the Congress had before the present system. The power is now shared by 21 committee chairmen instead of one man."

United States military involvement in Vietnam, the overriding issue of the 91st and 92nd Congress, will not dominate the next session, Burlison said.

"I see no single issue as being dominant," he said. Minimum wage and tax reform legislation will be "early issues," he predicted.

Both the Senate and House passed minimum wage bills in the last Congress but failed to reach a compromise. "I think we will get into this issue fairly early in the next session, and it will be a tough one." Burlison said.

The Senate's bill, opposed by Burlison, increased the types of workers covered and raised the minimum hourly wage from the present $1.60 to $2.25. Burlison voted for the House bill which would have raised the minimum to $2 without broader coverage.

"I supported the House version because it did not broaden coverage for farm workers," Burlison said. The present minimum wage law has little clout in the 10th District as far as farms are concerned, he noted, because only farmers who have seven or more full-time employes are covered.

Calling tax reform a major issue, Burlison said new legislation will seek further reduction of tax inequities and loopholes. "We need many more inequities removed or reduced, such as mineral depletion allowances, some tax benefits for foundations and charitable organizations, capital gains and accelerated depreciation. These are a few examples the Congress will zero in on in its tax reform legislation."

Tax legislation, Burlison said "is the most complex area we can get into. We hear a lot about the 100 or 200 so- called taxpayers who earn over $200,000 a year and yet have escaped paying one single cent of income tax. However, there are many tax preferences— exemptions and deductions— that also benefit the middle American, those who really support the government. In tax reform, there are so many power interests at play that it is difficult to legislate."

Bills providing money for education, welfare and health care will produce some of the hottest debate, Burlison believes. He had little to say on these subjects, except to note that cases pending before the Supreme Court on the constitutionality of public funding of private schools will determine future legislation in this area.

Bills providing tax credits for tuition paid by parents of students in private schools will spark debate, he said.

"No- fault" insurance legislation will be a big issue, Burlison said. The Senate in last session defeated a proposal by one vote and, therefore, the issue did not come before the House. "The House will tackle it this time and it is going to produce a battle with a close vote," he siad.

On the farm front, Burlison said he will promote legislation allowing cotton farmers to substitute soybeans on land set aside for cotton. The Agricultural Act of 1972 allows farmers to plant soybeans on land designated for corn and wheat. Citing a rising demand for beans in domestic and foreign markets, Burlison said the "cotton people also should have the option. It is unfair to deny them the soybean option that is available to feed grain farmers."

He predicted Congress would enact a farm program similar to the existing one.

Of Vietnam, Burlison said it will remain an issue "until every U.S. serviceman is brought out of Southeast Asia. However, it will not be of the magnitude that it has been."

Burlison, a longtime war critic, said a ceasefire will not be achieved until the Nixon administration "decides to disregard the Thieu regime." He referred to South Vietnamese President Nguyen Van Thieu, who has balked at a ceasefire without a guarantee that North Vietnam withdraw all its troops from the South. He also opposes a coalition government with the Viet Cong and the North.

Nixon administration statements shortly before the Nov. 7 elections that a peaceful settlement was near "was a lot of rhetoric for public consumption to win votes for President Nixon," Burlison claimed.

After a ceasefire, Burlison sees two more issues involving Vietnam: (1) controversy over funding requirements "to equip Thieu to make war after we are gone" and (2) "the extend of U.S. participation in rehabilitating both the North and the South."

Burlison predicted little action in the area of labor legislation.

The congressman said President Nixon will have a "weakened hand" in the 93rd Congress not only because of the Democratic majority but because "quite a few House and Senate Republicans are very decidedly antagonized by his refusal to help them in the campaign. It was strictly a Nixon campaign and a Nixon victory."

The President "can't expect the same support that he has received from his party in the last four years," Burlison said. He labeled Nixon a "lame Duck" president. "He will not have in the next four years the clout with Congress or within his own party.

"I do not say this just because I am a Democrat," Burlison continued. "I have been a frequent supporter of Mr. Nixon. I would say my support for him has been very respectable."

Burlison said the selection of Jean Westwood and the resounding defeat of presidential candidate Sen. George S. McGovern were "disastrous to the Democratic party."

"I considered McGovern a fringe candidate, not representative of the mainstream of the party or the public, but I supported him because he had the nomination."

Burlison said Democrats need "a new leadership that can command the more centrist philosophy of the American people.

WASHINGTON (AP)— United Mine Workers President W.A. "Tony" Boyle jumped off to an early lead in preliminary results announced by the government in the union's court- ordered election.

The initial vote count from 53 of the union's 1,300 locals showed Boyle with 2,180 votes to 1,587 for presidential challenger Arnold Miller of Ohley, W. Va.

Miller, running under the Miners for Democracy banner, is filling the insurgent shoes of the late Joseph A. "Jock" Yablonski, who was found murdered along with his wife and daughter several weeks after losing the union's 1969 presidential election to Boyle.

U.S. Dist. Court Judge William B. Bryant ordered the election after widespread voting fraud in the 1969 contest.

Boyle has repeatedly disclaimed any knowledge of the Yablonski slayings. Several local and district officials and mineworkers from Pennsylvania and Tennessee have confessed or been indicted in connection with the shootings.

The Labor Department count, conducted under heavy guard, also showed Boyle's running mates well ahead of their Miners for Democracy opponents. Leonard J. Pnakovich 2136 votes to 1,434 for vice president and Wilbert Killion polled 2,066 to 1,498 for Harry Patrick in the race for secretary- treasurer.

Labor Department officials estimated that some 130,000 out of the nearly 200,000 union members had voted in the election which was conducted Dec. 1- 8 in 25 states under the supervision of 1,000 Labor Department agents. The sealed ballot boxes were shipped to a Labor department office in suburban Silver Spring, Md., where the count is being conducted. The outcome is not expected to be known for several days.

Both sides predicted victory, and said the first announced votes were inconclusive.

Slick trick solves chores

VEEDERSBURG, Ind. (AP)— Gary Lightle, 15, didn't let any ice storm Tuesday stop him from providing milk and bread for his parents and three sisters.

THE LAY ANALYST
by Anne Richter
(Avon W326/$1.25
283 pp.)

Group therapy and it's cold and mercenary exploiters get a thorough going- over in this sizzling novel- expose' of the current therapeutic vogue. The exploiter is the bizarre Dr. Vane, whose equally bizarre views of love and sex attract a national following of men and women. The notorious Lay Analyst has no qualms about using any means to induce his patients to shed their inhibitions, and clothes, if necessary, in order to satisfy his erotic cravings. Using a technique that only he has mastered, Ralph Vane reduces his patients to their lowest animal level. His eager disciples eat it up. They include Elizabeth, the exquisite actress shattered by life; Robert, the homosexual, a weak man sustained by an inner sweetness; and Martin, a brilliant surgeon whose heart and soul are twisted by hate. Together with four other tormented souls who comprise Vane's unorthodix therapy group, they provide some of the wildest sessions ever recorded!

THE LAY ANALYST is Anne Richter's first novel. No stranger to the psychoanalytic world she describes so well, she has been active in psychoanalytic circles for years.

Leadership fight to overshadow Vietnam

CAPE GIRARDEAU— The most important task before the 93rd Congress when it convenes on Jan. 3 will be the selection of a House majority leader and committee chairmen, according to 10th District Congressman Bill Burlison.

Burlison said the task might even overshadow such issues as the Vietnam War, welfare reform, the economy and the farm program.

" I think how we will go about selecting the majority leader and the committee chairmen will go a long way toward determining not only the course of legislation in the next two years but how democratic the Congress can be," 10th District Rep. Bill D. Burlison said Friday.

The Cape Girardeau Democrat was somewhat critical of the autocratic seniority system that dominates the selection of congressional leaders. But he said in an interview that he has no firm proposal to change it. As he has done frequently in his two previous terms, he maintained a moderate stance.

"There is going to be a leadership fight among the Democrats," Burlison predicted. The main bout will be for the House majority leader's post presumably vacant as a result of the Oct. 16 plane crash in Alaska in which Rep. Hale Boggs of Louisiana disappeared. If the traditional seniority system is followed, Boggs' successor will be Rep. Thomas O'Neill of Massachusetts, the present majority whip.

Burlison would not say if he favors O'Neill. He said he would like to see top congressional positions filled on the basis of ability rather than seniority only.

Under the timeworn seniority system, lawmakers with the longest tenure, regardless of ability or personal concurrence with majority party views— in this case the Democratic party— are automatically confirmed or elevated to positions of power, including committee chairmanship. The majority leader chooses the majority whip and then, when vacancies occur, elevate the whip to the majority leadership and the majority leader to speaker of the House. What results is a Congress run by elderly and sometimes unrepresentative legislators.

"The question facing the Congress is not so much who will succeed Boggs," Burlison said. "The bigger question is whether the positions should be filled by the speaker and the majority leader or by election by members of the Congress. This is the only democratic way to do it."

Seniority, Burlison said, "has some validity but when you get down to leadership, perhaps the alternative should be to select the leadership on the basis of ability.

"However, who would judge who has the best ability? If the 435 members of the Congress were to elect colleagues to these powerful positions, politics would play an even more important part in the selection and they probably could not agree. There would be constant scheming.

"If someone would come up with a way to decide who would be the most able, then I would be for it. I am not wedded to the seniority system, but I am not in favor of a dictatorship as the Congress had before the present system. The power is now shared by 21 committee chairmen instead of one man."

United States military involvement in Vietnam, the overriding issue of the 91st and 92nd Congress, will not dominate the next session, Burlison said.

"I see no single issue as being dominant," he said. Minimum wage and tax reform legislation will be "early issues," he predicted.

Both the Senate and House passed minimum wage bills in the last Congress but failed to reach a compromise. "I think we will get into this issue fairly early in the next session, and it will be a tough one." Burlison said.

The Senate's bill, opposed by Burlison, increased the types of workers covered and raised the minimum hourly wage from the present $1.60 to $2.25. Burlison voted for the House bill which would have raised the minimum to $2 without broader coverage.

"I supported the House version because it did not broaden coverage for farm workers," Burlison said. The present minimum wage law has little clout in the 10th District as far as farms are concerned, he noted, because only farmers who have seven or more full-time employes are covered.

Calling tax reform a major issue, Burlison said new legislation will seek further reduction of tax inequities and loopholes. "We need many more inequities removed or reduced, such as mineral depletion allowances, some tax benefits for foundations and charitable organizations, capital gains and accelerated depreciation. These are a few examples the Congress will zero in on in its tax reform legislation."

Tax legislation, Burlison said "is the most complex area we can get into. We hear a lot about the 100 or 200 so- called taxpayers who earn over $200,000 a year and yet have escaped paying one single cent of income tax. However, there are many tax preferences— exemptions and deductions— that also benefit the middle American, those who really support the government. In tax reform, there are so many power interests at play that it is difficult to legislate."

Bills providing money for education, welfare and health care will produce some of the hottest debate, Burlison believes. He had little to say on these subjects, except to note that cases pending before the Supreme Court on the constitutionality of public funding of private schools will determine future legislation in this area.

Bills providing tax credits for tuition paid by parents of students in private schools will spark debate, he said.

"No- fault" insurance legislation will be a big issue, Burlison said. The Senate in last session defeated a proposal by one vote and, therefore, the issue did not come before the House. "The House will tackle it this time and it is going to produce a battle with a close vote," he siad.
